

Biggest Cafeteria In Georgia Is Run For U. S. Soldiers

By LEE FUHRMAN.

Uncle Sam runs the biggest cafeteria in the state. And gleaming is the word for this spanking new establishment out at Fort McPherson, where 1,000 men can be served at one sitting, topping by several hundred the capacity of any other eating place in this section of the country, private or military.

Officially, this mammoth restaurant is the mess hall and kitchen of the reception center. It's been in full operation only a couple of weeks, and is now going strong, although lots of labor-saving devices and equipment are still to be installed.

At the present time, the reception center mess feeds—

three times daily—more than 200 permanently assigned enlisted men and approximately 600 selective service trainees.

The large kitchen contains thousands of dollars' worth of equipment, the sort of bright and shining things that would make the average housewife green with envy—and appall her a little, too.

There are six huge gas ranges on both sides of the kitchen, the two sides operating as one unit. There are four grill-top stoves. There's a sparkling 80-gallon steam kettle and a 60-gallon steam kettle. There are eight deep-fat frying units. And there are two large bake ovens, which can bake pies, rolls, biscuits, etc., for at least 1,000 men.

Then there are two large cold storage units, where meat and vegetables are stored, besides the usual kitchen utensils, sinks, little rooms where culinary jobs can be performed.

To man this mess, 12 cooks to a shift are needed. In addition to the cooks, there are 30 "KPs" a day, the lads from the receiving battalion who take their turns at kitchen police.

But the term kitchen police is something of a misnomer—it has no disciplinary sting. It's merely regular fatigue duty. For there's no extra duty, as punishment for infringement of rules and regulations, in the kitchen.

Paraphrasing at this point, it may be inserted that rule breakers are put on other tasks, such as chopping wood, with a guard standing by a few feet away.

Work preparing breakfast, which is served at 6:45 o'clock in the morning, begins at 3 o'clock in the morning. The heaviest meal is dinner, served at noon, which requires about four hours to get ready. Supper is served at 5, and requires an hour less than dinner, as there is one less dish to prepare.

When meal time comes around, the boys out at Fort Mac don't ask what's on the menu. They just get in the "chow line," mess kits and knife, fork and spoon in hand, and file into the two large dining halls, which seat 12 men to a table at the 64 tables now, but can seat 15 comfortably in a pinch.

No, they don't ask what's on the menu. But there's plenty

Anti-Mosquito Grass Is Found In Venezuela by British Doctor

Oily Weed Also Repugnant to Snakes and Cattle Ticks.

By THOMAS R. HENRY.

For North American Newspaper Alliance.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—

Thousands of square miles of northern South America and Central America may be opened to the colonization of persons from northern European countries through the discovery by an English doctor in Caracas, Venezuela, of a strange grass which drives away mosquitoes, ticks and snakes.

Seeds of this grass already have been produced in large quantities by Dr. Edward Morgan and supplied to the Venezuelan government, which is sowing them around homesteads prepared for Danish emigrants who are being settled in the interior of the country.

This provides homes free at the start from danger of malaria, snake bite and half a dozen virulent diseases of men and animals known to be carried by ticks. Dr. Morgan has analyzed the grass and finds it one of the richest of all pasture feeds for horses, cows and mules—although probably unsuitable for sheep.

The grass is a species known as neelinis multiflora. It is native to Venezuela and, Dr. Morgan says, its strange properties long have been known to a few native farmers who have pioneered and prospered in supposedly uninhabitable country. The great curse of large areas of the country is malaria, the disease which is supposed to have caused the downfall of the great Maya empire in Yucatan during the 50 years before the coming of the Spaniards. The same disease, Dr. Morgan says, has kept the population of Venezuela down to about 4,000,000, although there is fertile land to support 10 times that number. Large regions, otherwise ideally adapted to stock raising, are dotted with thick forests and are partly flooded during the rainy season from April to November. Malaria-bearing mosquitoes swarm in unendurable numbers.

This is the time the oily grass is green. It is most efficacious as a shield against pests. Hardly one mosquito can be found over a pasture sown with it. Cattle infested with ticks are tick-free in a few days after being turned into such a pasture. The dreaded fer-de-lance and bushmaster will not come within smelling distance, but stock avidly devour the grass and get fat.

BAILEY PLEADS FOR BRITISH AID EVEN IF U. S. MUST GO TO WAR

Senate Group Favors Bill To Restrict Unions

Labor, Foes Pack House Chamber for Hearing on Measure.

By CHARLES GILMORE.

Senator H. B. Edwards yesterday afternoon won the first round of his battle against labor organizations when a senate State of the Republic Committee favorably reported his bill, which prohibits union activities on national defense projects in Georgia.

The committee decision was unanimous and followed immediately a four-hour public hearing held in the House of Representatives' auditorium. Senator Houston moved to table the measure until tomorrow, but Senator Campbell called for a favorable vote and this was done unanimously after a second by Senator Edenfield. Despite a floor and gallery packed with labor sympathizers and anti-unionists, the meeting was orderly and without anticipated fireworks.

Appointed Once.

Even statements by Senator Edwards that Dewey Johnson, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, was a "racketeer" and allegations that the local AFL Carpenters' Union, directed by W. Lee Sorrells, was "robbing the working man at Camp Gordon," failed to incite any demonstration.

Only once did the floor and the gallery, which was filled by a large delegation from the local Women's Garment Workers' Union, break out in applause. That was when Senator Jim Clark, presiding over the hearing, restrained Edwards from introducing additional evidence after his time had expired and pointed out that the committee wanted "a fair and just hearing."

Sorrells Testifies.

Sorrells, who has passed challenges of fitness back and forth with Senator Edwards, described the work of his union at Camp Gordon by denying that carpenters were required to pay $50 to work and then fired so that the fee could be extracted from new men.

Edwards, who was the first to speak at the hearing, turned over to the committee a brief case full of letters and affidavits which he says attest to the "racketeering activities of labor unions at Camp Gordon, Hinesville, Savannah, Macon and Columbus."

He read a letter from I. A. Camp, of Villa Rica, who wrote that he paid Sorrells $18.50 for a temporary work card at Camp Gordon, where a closed shop was instituted several weeks ago. According to Camp, Sorrells

Airpower Gains Give Control to Britain in Asia

Great Number of Craft Sent to Singapore With Aussies.

By The Associated Press.

SINGAPORE, Feb. 19.—British, Australian, Malayan and Indian regiments stood in strength in Malaya tonight, manning the mighty bastion of Singapore to meet any spread of the war in the Pacific, and by bringing in heavy reinforcements of warplanes the British appeared also to have seized the balance of air power in southeastern Asia.

The Australians, who arrived yesterday in singing thousands after a 3,000-mile trip under convoy, took up their stations along with fellow Imperial troops at every vital position in Malaya and the already mobilized civil defense units—including the Chinese—prepared to do their part.

(In Tokyo, it was charged Britain was trying to create a crisis in the Far East; in Shanghai a Japanese army spokesman described the Australians' arrival at Singapore as "a belligerent action" intended to put pressure on Thailand (Siam), "which is co-operating with Japan in bringing a new order into the Far East.")

Authorities put into effect an air defense program and Singapore's buildings were protected by bombast screens. Hundreds of air raid shelters were being built.

At his first press conference here the ambassador declared he believed there was no problem that should bring the two countries into war.

Japan, he said, seeks to expand southward peacefully, by economic means, and was doing its utmost to avoid resorting to force. He could not state definitely, he said, Japan would not resort to force in this program, but he could say the nation was making every effort to avoid this.

Referring to Japan's alliance with Germany and Italy, Nomura said it was Japan's intention to try to preserve peace in the Pacific and she did not envisage war with the United States in entering this agreement.

Ramspeck Seeks To Boost NLRB

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP) At the request of the American Federation of Labor, Representative Ramspeck, Democrat, Georgia, introduced legislation today to increase the three-man Labor Relations Board to five members.

Under other provisions of the AFL's suggested amendments, as offered by Ramspeck, craft units could determine their own bargaining status.

American diplomatic and consular officials would be required to refuse passports or visas to aliens they know or have reason to believe seek entrance to the United States to engage in subversive activities, under a bill introduced by Senator Russell, Democrat, Georgia.

Russell also introduced a bill authorizing the appropriation of $52,500,000 for the refunding of cotton tax certificates issued under the Bankhead act passed by the 73d congress.

House Passes Bill To Bolster Georgia Press' Bases Astride Japan's Sealanes

$245,228,500 Voted as Lawmakers Score Nippon; Offense on Part of Tokyo Would Be 'Meddling,' Says Stark's Letter.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(UP)—The house today approved a bill authorizing expansion of naval air bases at Guam and Samoa, astride the western Pacific sealanes to Japan, after Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, said bluntly that if Japan took offense it would be unmerited meddling in United States affairs.

The measure, calling for $245,228,500 of improvements on strategic bases in the Pacific, the Atlantic and in continental United States, was passed by voice vote, with Representative Vito Marcantonio, American-Labor, New York, the lone dissenter.

The vote was taken after less than two hours of debate and while the administration maintained a "watchful waiting" policy toward the explosive Far Eastern situation.

Meanwhile, the Army strengthened its intelligence service in the Far East by assigning observers to Thailand (Siam), Singapore and the Dutch East Indies, effective by March 1.

Simultaneously the Navy announced that the fleet, now in Hawaii, will be strengthened in September by the addition of the new 35,000-ton battleship Washington. It said the vessel will be commissioned in May, six and one-half months ahead of schedule.

Chairman Carl Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the Naval Affairs Committee, paved the way for the vote by reading a letter from Stark describing the Guam improvement as "inoffensive" and stating that if Japan did profess offense "it would be unmerited and should, in my opinion, be totally disregarded."

"After all," Stark said, "Guam is United States property and it seems to me our actions should be determined by what is best for the United States and not dictated by any foreign power."

Representative Charles I. Faddis, Democrat, Pennsylvania, de-

Paraguay Accepts Bid to Warm Springs

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Dr. Juan T. Soler, Paraguayan minister, said today the 10-year-old son of President Morinigo of Paraguay would leave for Warm Springs, Ga., within a month to take treatment for infantile paralysis.

President Roosevelt, on hearing of the boy's illness, had invited the Paraguayan president to send his son to Warm Springs.

Dr. Soler said today that the invitation had been accepted and that the boy, accompanied by his mother, would leave Asuncion in about a month.

Installment Payment of Fines Is Urged for Recorder's Court

By HERMAN HANCOCK.

The irksome, irritating and often unsuccessful business of having to borrow money from friends and sometimes even acquaintances before appearing in recorder's court on some minor charge because one hasn't the price of a fine may be eliminated in the future.

It will be changed on March 3 if council agrees to a proposal having the backing of judges of the recorder's courts and several influential members of council. It will be superseded by a plan to allow installment payments of fines imposed by judges.

So cash on the barrel head to avoid spending a few days as a free boarder in the city bastille may become passe.

Another advantage of the proposed new system is that one won't have to chase around getting relatives or friends to sign his note to cover the difference between what one can pay and the amount the recorder assessed as a fair price for the offense. Good credit rating and other security will not be a prerequisite under the program. The plan contemplates a sort of gentlemen's agreement between the court and the convicted.

Following a conference yesterday between Traffic Court Judge Luke S. Arnold and Councilmen J. Allen Couch, third ward, and James E. Jackson, first ward, it was agreed that council will be asked to leave in the discretion of the recorder's courts and that they might inaugurate a system through which those convicted of offenses against municipal ordinances may pay out on the installment plan.

All of which adds up to give the citizenry more security in the matter of paying off for minor violations of the law, and makes escape from the maw of prison gates more democratic because in former years only the affluent could stand the gaff while those in the lower income brackets had to pay by serving time.

Bill Introduced To End Daylight Time in Atlanta

Change Confuses Neighboring Towns, Carroll Legislator Says.

A bill which would prohibit Atlanta from going on daylight saving time during the summer months was introduced in the house of representative yesterday by Representative W. O. Smith, of Carroll.

The measure prohibits officials of any city in the state from passing any ordinance or resolution changing the time. It specifically outlaws daylight saving time.

Representative Smith pointed out that citizens of numerous cities surrounding Atlanta traded here and found it difficult to adjust themselves to a different time zone.

Legislation to place the entire state on eastern standard time was defeated in the house but will be taken up again since the legislators voted to reconsider.

Smith said he thought the eastern time bill would pass the low-

House Asks Stamps To Honor Watson

By a standing vote, the house of representatives called upon congress to authorize a special stamp bearing the likeness of one of Georgia's statesmen of yesterday—Thomas E. Watson.

The resolution was introduced by Representatives Drinkard, of Lincoln; Evans, of McDuffie; Pannell, of Murray; Boone, of Wilkes; and Bleese, of Brooks.

It recited that Watson offered the first resolution ever passed for free delivery of mail.

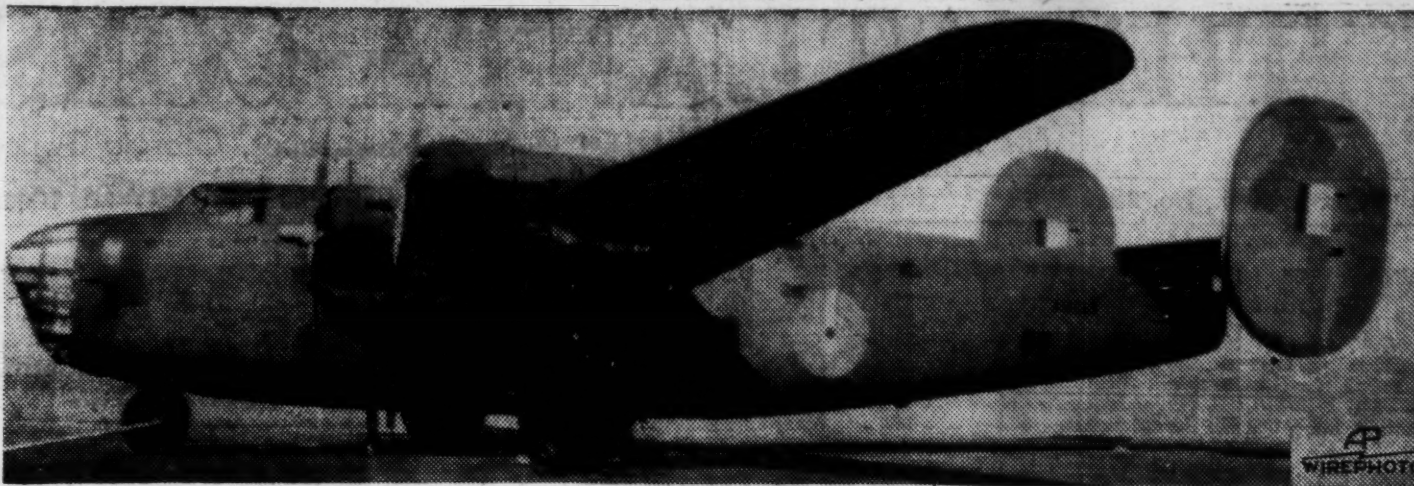

Another resolution by Representative W. F. Johnson, of Pike, ordered that a United States flag and a Georgia flag be placed in the house behind the speaker's stand to give the lower chamber a patriotic appearance.

A resolution memorializing the late John C. Parker, of Colquitt, former speaker pro tempore of the house, also was adopted.

Administration leaders introduced a bill providing that when a suit was commenced by or against a public officer his successor in office would be liable in the event of death or removal.

Representative W. H. Lovett, of Laurens, explained that several suits were pending in the Revenue Department and that the proposed legislation would keep them from being ended by a change of administration. He said it was also the intention of the sponsors that the bill apply to county officials.

Knudsen Says Defense Is Not Hurt by Strikes

Murray Voices Threat of Walkout in Steel Plant.

By The Associated Press.

A threat of a strike in a defense plant employing 14,000 men was voiced yesterday by Philip Murray, CIO president, a short time after William S. Knudsen had told a house committee that labor difficulties had not seriously hampered the defense program.

Murray, who also is chairman of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, notified defense authorities in Washington that unless they were "prepared to see" that the Bethlehem Steel Company "discontinues its unlawful and discriminatory" practices, the company's Lackawanna, N. Y., plant would be closed.

300 "Locked Out." Murray protested to Sidney Hillman, associate director of the Office of Production Management, that the company had "locked out" 300 employees.

In Buffalo, N. Y., a National Labor Board official declared that the SWOC had filed charges against Bethlehem in connection with the alleged "lockout."

Knudsen, director of the OPM, made his assertion concerning labor troubles while testifying before the House Judiciary Committee in Washington. During the same appearance he expressed the view that the four-week-old strike at the Allis-Chalmers plant in Milwaukee would be settled tomorrow.

Discussions Continue.

Conferences in Milwaukee brought no signs of an agreement, however. Company officials and representatives of the CIO-United Auto Workers continued discussions which have been going on almost continuously since the strike began.

These other labor developments were reported in other cities yesterday:

DETROIT—Printed notices that the Ford Motor Company will "cease and desist" from discouraging organization work among its employees by the United Automobile Workers-CIO and otherwise comply with an order of the National Labor Relations Board were posted in departments of the company's plants. The posting by the company of two such notices in each department was one of the stipulations of an NLRB order growing out of disorders at the Ford Rouge plant in May, 1937, and sustained last week by the supreme court.

Voting on Strike.

CHICAGO—CIO union members were voting whether to strike against the McCormick Works of the International Harvester Company. About 6,000 employed there.

MIAMI, Fla.—George M. Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, said the results of a strike vote involving 14 railroad unions would be tabulated in Washington on March 28. At issue is the question whether the workers should receive two-week vacations with pay.

Boat Removed.

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—A tuna boat in the process of conversion to a minesweeper was removed from the strike-bound Campbell Machine Company to the Navy's destroyer base, where it will be completed.

KENOSHA, Wis.—A union official said that union workers of the Nash-Kelvinator plant had voted 8 to 1, to strike. The union was said to be dissatisfied with results of negotiations for the hiring of employees at the company's Racine, Wis. plant.

Missing Hats Stir Solons To Fiery Oratory

Heated Words Follow Loss of Legislative Skimmers.

Georgia legislators are all up in the air about the loss of their hats.

Some of the boys from the back country wanted to lose their shirts when they got to the city, but they didn't think they would have to give up their skimmers.

In the midst of a busy session yesterday, Representative J. M. Simmons, of Decatur, took the floor wearing a brown hat that came down over his ears.

In woe-filled tones, he explained he attended a meeting of the ways and means committee the day before. He put his hat down on a table, but when he started to leave he found someone had taken his and left him the over-sized edition.

Representative Edward Wohlwend, of Muscogee, followed Simmons with a fiery oration on his experiences with Atlanta checkrooms and warned his fellow legislators against putting too much trust in the "city slickers."

Representative J. Bush Mims, of Colquitt, recounted the sad tale of his lost hat, and Representative J. W. Culpepper, of Fayette, told of his missing head piece. Speaker Randall Evans Jr. later reported Culpepper's fedora safe. Evans said he was seriously considering the idea of installing a checkroom.

Mardi Gras Rites Get Modern Touch

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 19.—(P)—Vesuvius erupted through gayly decorated Canal street here tonight as the Krewe of Babylon paraded through the city in a carnival pageant depicting "Capricious Nature."

Although but two years old, the Krewe of Babylon injected the modern touch into the ancient Mardi Gras rites. The eruption of Vesuvius was depicted by neon lights, which furnished the flames and lava.

Parades and balls will follow each other in rapid succession until Mardi Gras (fat Tuesday) February 28, when Rex, king of all the carnival, turns the city into a madhouse of merriment until the stroke of midnight ushers in the penitence and prayer of Lent.

ASCAP Heads Agree To Make Policy Changes

Consent Decree Calls for $24,000 Fines in Government Case.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(P)—The possibility that peace negotiations might be renewed in the music battle of the air between broadcasters and the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers appeared today as one result of the ASCAP directors' approval of a consent decree designed to end the government's criminal antitrust action against the society.

Under terms of the decree $24,000 in fines would be assessed and changes would be made in ASCAP's operations' policies. Gene Buck, ASCAP president, opened the way for new negotiations with the National Association of Broadcasters.

In a statement, ASCAP said that the decree "in the case of networks broadcasts puts it to effect a provision which has been a main source of contention of the existing controversy; that is, that as to such broadcasts the entire fee for the use of copyrighted music must be paid by the originating station and no fee whatever paid by the interconnected stations."

Other terms of the decree provided that:

Exclusive agency provisions of ASCAP to be modified, permitting a member to license any of his works for use, but ASCAP also to retain licensing power. The individual, however, must notify ASCAP of any such agreement.

All money received under an individual licensing agreement must go to ASCAP, to be disbursed out of the general fund under the society's rules.

A broadcaster, at his option, would have the privilege of obtaining an ASCAP license upon either a "blanket basis" or a "per program" basis, in either case paying fees only for programs using ASCAP music.

Carroll represented Catoosa county in the Georgia legislature for several terms. He served as a second lieutenant in the Sixth Alabama Regiment during the War Between the States.

1,036 Planes Delivered in Single Month

Knudsen Reveals Rise in Output for U. S. and Britain.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(P)—William S. Knudsen, director of the Office of Production Management, said today that during January 1,036 airplanes were delivered by United States manufacturers, of which 957 went to the United States Army and Navy and to the British forces.

Knudsen told a press conference that he expected the rate of production to "pick up a little" next summer.

He said that an airplane output of 18,000 may be expected this year. Knudsen declined to disclose the numbers of various types of planes produced during January, but he said that only 26 were commercial craft.

Knudsen also said that the OPM had approved an experimental contract with the Ford Motor Company for construction of plane parts.

The contract, between Ford and the Army Air Corps, will provide for the government to pay for fixtures for a new plant to be built at Ypsilanti, Mich., but Knudsen declined to disclose the amount involved.

OLD TIMERS—Veteran of many a Press Institute at Athens, and of many a Georgia Press Association junket in times past is the quartet shown here as they greet each other and get down to shop talk. Left to right, Mrs. C. B. Allen, C. B. Allen, editor of the Moultrie Observer, and Albert S. Hardy, of the Gainesville News, and Mrs. Hardy.

ENGLAND LIMITS EXPORTS.
LONDON, Feb. 19.—(P)—The government announced today that it was prohibiting the export of goods from Britain to Brazil, Chile, Colombia and Peru except by license, effective March 6.

schools of journalism of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association. He discussed the value of technical education and training for young men and women who intend taking up various branches of newspaper work.

Davidson called for publishers, advertisers, the public, the paper staffs, employing editors and journalism schools to accept joint responsibility for maintaining and improving editorial standards of American newspapers.

At the same time he declared that attempts to unionize editorial workers and the "attitude" of the federal government in administering the wage-hour law had hindered progress of the newspaper man toward higher professional standards.

Born of Depression.
"The Newspaper Guild," he said, "a direct outgrowth of the depression period, has been, I believe, an unfortunate development, not at all because it represented an effort of newspaper workers to better their lot by talking to employers from the vantage point of organization, but because it attempted to measure work, which like that of a physician or a lawyer, is essentially without time limit, in terms of hours."

"Equally unfortunate has been the attitude of the United States government in refusing to recognize the professional nature of newspaper work by including editorial employees in the provisions of the wage-hour act. By the very nature of their tasks there is only one proper week for newspaper men. That is the 168-hour week."

The visitors were welcomed by Hugh J. Rowe, editor of the Athens Banner-Herald, and the response was by Roy E. McGinty, editor of the Calhoun Times and president of the Georgia Press Association.

Among those formally presented were Miss Emily Woodward, founder of the Press Institute, and Albert S. Hardy, of the Gainesville News, chairman of that body.

On motion of Roy E. McGinty, president Georgia Press Association, the institute resolved itself for a moment into the Georgia Press Association and unanimously adopted a resolution, which follows:

"In appreciation of the excellent work of the Georgia legislature in its present session the members of the house and senate are invited to attend the next three days' meetings of the Georgia Press Institute."

Senator Hell-Bent Edwards attended the dinner given by the University of Georgia but was forced to leave before the speaking began so he did not add to the oratory.

Talk On Circulation.

"Newspaper Subscriptions—How to Get Them and How to Hold Them" will be the round table topic for tomorrow morning's session. It will be led by Milton W. Fleetwood, publisher of the Cartersville Tribune-News, with a number of editors of weekly newspapers offering suggestions and comments.

The Thursday morning chapel speaker will be Harry Grayson, sports editor, Newspaper Enterprise Association. He will be the guest of the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer, and will be introduced by Publisher Maynard Ashworth.

Following Mr. Ashworth will be Edward Beattie, foreign correspondent of the United Press, presented through the courtesy of William S. Morris, publisher of the Augusta Chronicle. Mr. Beattie, who is 31, is a veteran of the United Press. He has cabled his stuff from London, Berlin, Addis Ababa, Tokyo, Shanghai, Prague, Warsaw and Helsinki. Recently he has been covering the "Battle of Britain" from the London office. He has been under fire from German planes several times.

Beattie was the first to send out the story of the bombing of Warsaw and the last foreign correspondent to leave that war-stricken city.

The Columbus Ledger-Enquirer will be host tomorrow at a luncheon in the university cafeteria, when Nelson Shipp, editor of those papers, will be speaker.

News Photography.

"Newspaper Photography for the Small Daily and Weekly" will be discussed tomorrow afternoon, with Raymond B. Nixon, of the Department of Journalism of Emory University, as leader. At a later session "Character in the Press" will be discussed by James P. Chapman, of the Lowndes County News, of Valdosta; Mrs. Egan Cain Daniel, Quitman Free Press; John Crouch, Albany Journal, and Ward Harrison, Folkston Herald.

Hugh Hodgson, director of the division of fine arts of the university, tomorrow night will present a "Music Appreciation Hour." Friday's sessions will be featured by addresses at the chapel and later at a luncheon by former Governor James M. Cox, publisher of The Atlanta Journal. The luncheon will be given by The Journal with John Paschall presiding.

Saturday's principal feature will be the address by Kirke L. Simpson, of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press. He will be presented as a guest of The Atlanta Constitution and introduced by Major Clark Howell, editor and publisher.

House Passes Bill To Develop Naval Outposts

manded in this connection that this government serve notice on Japan now that "if they strike at Singapore, the American Navy will cut their lines of supply and we will move on their principal cities and industrial centers and destroy them."

Representatives August H. Andresen, Republican, Minnesota, and Albert Gore, Democrat, Tennessee, agreed with Faddis. Andresen called for an "absolute embargo" on war supplies to Japan and Gore said he was glad Faddis is "paying our respects to those scruffy, contemptible, squint-eyed Sons of the Rising Sun."

Their remarks induced a deluge

of debate, most of it condemnatory of the island empire.

Japan has served notice repeatedly in the past four years that any move to fortify Guam would be offensive to the Tokyo government and conducive of disturbed relations in the Far East. The last two congresses refused to authorize major improvements although the Navy high command said they were urgently needed.

Representative John Dingell, Democrat, Michigan, recalled those circumstances and said that in 1938 only a "cowardly" attitude caused the house to reject the plan.

The measure now goes to the senate where action is expected soon after the British aid bill is disposed of. It covers, in addition to the Pacific and Atlantic projects, bases being established on British-owned possessions in this hemisphere.

TO MARK GRAVE.

LEXINGTON, Ga., Feb. 19.—(P)—Approximately 400 members of the Order of Woodmen voted last night to erect a special marker at the grave of William H. Crawford. Dr. Joseph M. Branch, head consul of Georgia Woodmen, said Crawford was one of the greatest Georgians of all time.

Missouri Court Rules Donnell Is Governor

Seating Had Been Delayed Pending Outcome of Contest.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 19.—(P)—The state supreme court recognized Forrest C. Donnell, a Republican, as Governor of Missouri today in a decision which left Democratic leaders divided over their efforts to seat Lawrence McDaniel. Both men are residents of St. Louis.

The court upheld Donnell's claim to the office by virtue of his 3,613-vote plurality in last November's election and directed the Democrat-controlled legislature to seat him immediately.

There was no ruling, however, on a second suit by Donnell asking for a writ of prohibition to stop a legislative committee from beginning an actual recount of votes before seating him. Neither did the ruling go into the validity of the committee, composed of six Democrats and four Republicans. It was created at an all-night session last month to investigate

Democratic charges of election fraud.

In its ruling today the court, composed of seven Democrats, issued a peremptory writ of mandamus against House Speaker Norris E. Osburn, Democrat, ordering him to declare the election of Donnell "who is admittedly the person having the highest number of votes on the face of the returns."

The court added that the action of the assembly in directing the speaker to withhold declaring Donnell elected was unconstitutional and void.

Senator L. N. Searcy, Democrat, chairman of the Legislative Contest Committee, commented:

"It is my purpose, and in my opinion it will be the purpose of the legislature, to proceed with the contest. Of course, that would be done after the seating of Donnell."

He said he would not discharge the present committee, but added "Of course, it can't do anything until the court rules on that prohibition suit."

In St. Louis, however, Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann, of that city, whose Democratic organization backed McDaniel last November, said if McDaniel and Democratic leaders in the legislature decided to push contest, "that is their privilege," but "as far as I'm concerned I'd like to see the whole incident closed as soon as possible and out of the way."

Laid End to End They Add up to a Swell Idea

We mean these Four New Additions to the Buick SPECIAL Series that Give you Big-Car Thrill in less Curbside Space

THE way cars have been stretching out lately, it usually takes only a couple of cars to occupy the curb space of an extension-ladder fire truck.

Not so with the newest additions to the 1941 Buick line.

Here we've reversed the trend—just to prove that an honest-to-golly BIG car can be built without going overboard on bumper-to-bumper distance.

The four new models now adorning the Buick SPECIAL Series fit neatly into modest garages without putting a permanent crimp in the doors.

They slip into parking places smoothly as a rowboat nestles up to a dock—and the way they flit through traffic is a delight to wheel-weary drivers.

When it comes to action—well, they've got a 115-hp. FIREBALL eight under their bonnets that skims you down the road like a mallard heading home. You can add Compound Carburetion at small extra cost and have 125 horsepower that does things we hardly dare hint about in print.

But they're a handy six inches shorter, bumper to bumper, than other Buicks—a quartet of top-quality cars in an easily-handled size that hasn't known such merit before.

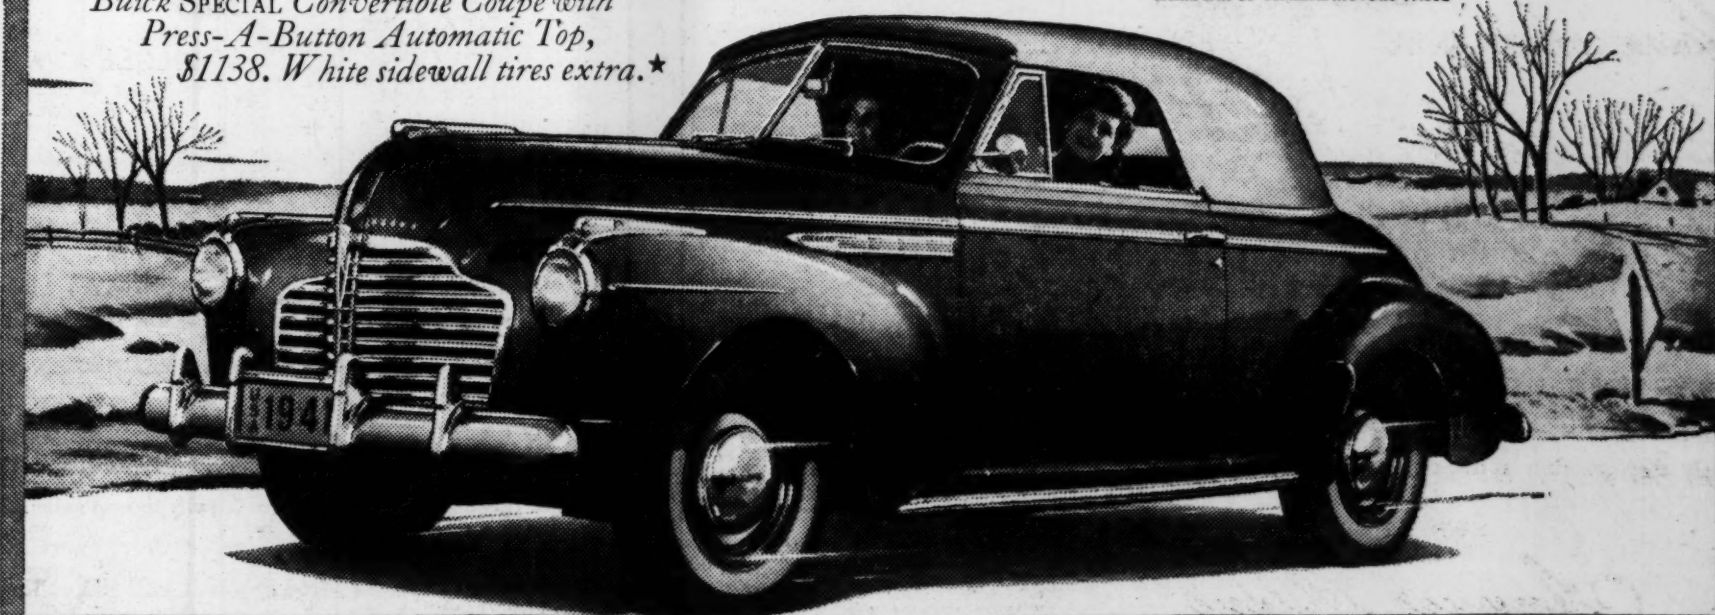

The price? It's lower too, since we've passed on to you savings we make in trimming inches off these models.

Better take a look—it'll be the first time you've ever seen a really BIG car wrapped up in this bumper-to-bumper distance.

Brown Urges Jury Action on Public Relief

Commissioner Explains Needs of County's Welfare Office.

Request for the Fulton county grand jury to recommend a levy for public relief for 1941 was made yesterday by County Commissioner Charlie Brown, chairman of the commission's alms and juvenile committee.

Brown, James L. Respass, county auditor, and Thomas C. Dickson, director of the public welfare department, went before the jury at a special session to explain the needs of the welfare department this year.

It was understood Brown told the jurymen that a two and three-quarter mill levy would raise more money this year than last, but that a two and one-half mill levy would not raise enough. The department is operating now at the rate of a two and three-quarter mill levy.

Two successive grand juries must recommend a relief levy before the county commissioners can officially levy this tax rate in the fall when the tax rate is set.

Cold Pushing Toward South

By The Associated Press.
Midwinter cold besieged the north yesterday and pushed on toward the south.

A huge mass of Arctic air, accompanied by subzero temperatures at many points, stretched from western Canada to Michigan with no break of consequence in prospect until Saturday at the earliest.

Forecasts predicted the frigid front would move south and east. Heavy snow began falling in northern and central Arkansas at noon. Chill rains and snow were forecast for all the southeastern states except Florida together with subfreezing conditions in the northern reaches of Dixie and frosty weather as far south as the Gulf coast.

LYONS, Ga., Feb. 19.—H. S. Johnson, manager of the Pal theater chain, announced today that a new and modern theater will be built here to replace the one destroyed by fire last week.

Shirt Workers Strike, Picket Factory Here

About 750 Walk Out Seeking Raises, Union Recognition.

With more than half of the workers on strike, the Atlanta shirt-making plant of Cluett-Peabody Company on Murphy avenue shut down yesterday pending negotiations between officials and labor leaders for a wage increase and union recognition.

Picket lines were established outside the plant, but there were no reports of violence.

In Troy, N. Y., R. O. Kennedy, vice president of the firm, conferred with Dr. Gladys Dickson, representing the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union, regarding a possible settlement, and conferences were also expected to begin in Atlanta.

Bernard Borah, southern division representative of the union, said the workers were seeking a 12 per cent wage increase, to meet increased costs of living, and union recognition. About 750 persons struck.

A spokesman for the firm predicted an early settlement of the dispute and indicated the plant is expected to resume normal operations shortly.

College Glee Club Concerts Planned

At 11 o'clock Sunday morning the glee club and Dr. William Plumer Jacobs, president of the college, will conduct a special "Christian Education" day service at the First Presbyterian church. At 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon a similar service will be held at the Gordon Street Presbyterian church.

Georgia members of the club, which sings classical, semi-classical and religious numbers, include Felton Moore, of Rome; Hoyt Crenshaw, of Martin; John W. Mauldin, of Dahlonega; Howard Chesnut, of Moultrie; Branch Fleming, of Cordele; Louie Porter, of Thomasville; Jim Jones, of Gainesville; Joe Jones, of Gainesville; Tom Hicks, of Decatur; Tom Dews, of Edison; Bill Shields, of Decatur, and Thomas Beardsley, of Donaldsonville.

Royal Crown's Plans For Ads Explained

Sales representatives of the Royal Crown Bottling Company from Georgia, South Carolina and Florida met at the Ansley hotel here yesterday to hear President John W. Roach, of the Atlanta company, explain the advertising set-up for the national company this year.

Roach said, "The advertising plans for Royal Crown Cola for 1941 are the biggest in the company history and will employ newspapers, radio and poster outlets. Movie stars will be used to tie in with endorsements."

Poor Leadership

Even the most sincere friends of labor must view with misgivings the tendency of labor's leaders to cry down any critics as being antagonistic to all unions. There are too many serious questions facing labor—and the people—for the old cry of "enemy sighted" every time the policies of the hierarchy of unionism are questioned.

Too many actions of labor today are being questioned for the workman's leaders to be content to sit back on the theory that an anti-union label on the questioner will suffice as an explanation to the general public, without the support of which labor cannot function in unionism. Labor in itself is not strong enough to override the sentiment of all other factors in American life, and the sooner its leaders are prepared to sit down and thresh out the problems confronting labor today the better it will be for labor in the long run.

In Atlanta, labor sensibly avoided strife on the army hospital project. It has not been as wise in other instances and places and the mounting cry in the congress and before state legislatures is purely and simply a reflection of public sentiment.

An example of the short-sightedness being evidenced comes from the lips of William Green, perennial president of the American Federation of Labor, when he attacks Thurman Arnold as an enemy of unionism just after Arnold points out specific practices of unions which undeniably tend to increase costs of construction and of living. One must question seriously whether organized labor is not in danger of committing suicide when it persists in this attitude.

There have been many evidences in the last few months of a readiness on the part of all factions in American life to compromise and sacrifice in the interests not only of an armed America, but of a better America. It is the duty—and the privilege—of unions to co-operate in the same way, not to the end that unions will sacrifice the gains they have attained through the years, but to the end that they will aid all workers in their struggle for a better existence and an end to class strife. This labor cannot do unless it is willing to face the facts of life.

Babe Ruth was far from being the picture-book athlete; and looking at Laval, who would pick the fellow for an artist on the flying trapeze,

Encouraging

There is strong encouragement in the report of President John H. Jouett, of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, on production of American planes in January.

Military planes turned out by factories in this country, in that month, totalled more than 1,000. Colonel Jouett predicts a manufacturing rate of 1,500 per month by midyear. These figures include planes made for our own military and naval establishments and for the British, as well.

Last fall government officials called on the airplane industry for a rate of 1,000 planes per month by January. The industry believed, at that time, the goal was impossible of achievement. Yet, despite every obstacle, some of them unanticipated, the goal was not only reached but passed.

It provides a new hope to Americans who have been perplexed by many seemingly unnecessary delays in the twin programs of American defense and aid to Britain. The plane industry has risen magnificently to the emergency and that it will continue to surpass even its own objectives may be expected.

It would not be out of line with past performance if, instead of the 1,500 a month now expected by midyear, our plants were turning out, when that time comes, 2,000 or more per month. If such acceleration can be maintained and if the government moves with equal celerity in training the men to pilot those planes, the day is not far distant when the doom of Nazidom will be written in the skies, clear enough for all men to see.

Time for Firmness

Encouraged by a belief that affairs in Europe are, and will, occupy the entire attention of the British and of the United States, Japan is trying, once again, that peculiar game of Nipponese aggression and bluff by which she hopes to grab something for herself out of the world disruption.

Included in the Japanese verbal maneuvers are thinly veiled threats to the United States, found in the editorial columns of the Tokyo newspapers—newspapers, it must be remembered, which cannot express opinions not previously approved by the Japanese government.

Japan threatens, directly or obliquely, to take the great British naval base of Singapore. The Japanese military clique envisions a Japan ruling all Malaya and the other regions of the far east, a Japan menacing Australia and New Zealand and a Japan in position to take the Philippines any time she wishes.

As a matter of fact, all that is needed to stop this irritating hissing and threatening by the Japanese, is a reasonable show of firmness by this government. Just let Tokyo know, without equivocation, that any move by the Japanese will bring the American navy actively into the eastern picture and there is no doubt that there would be a hurried backing down, accompanied by abject apologies.

Against a first-class naval power the Japanese are helpless. The quality of their navy is far below that of either Britain or America and, according to practically every American naval man who has had experience in the Orient, the American Pacific fleet could quickly and effectively wipe the Japanese from the oceans.

As for Japan herself, her vulnerability to air attack is amazing. Her industries are crowded together in comparatively small areas, many of them are constructed of the familiar Japanese matchwood and paper and it would require no more than a few well placed bombs to wipe them out.

It is time for this country to call the Japanese bluff. Our navy alone could easily smash the Japanese forces beyond hope of recovery in many years.

But use of the navy would be unnecessary. All that is needed is proper firmness, now, and the Japanese, as a menace, will be removed from the picture.

Unprofessional conduct is the charge against a local autograph hound. Having been given the coveted signature, she murmured, "Thank you."

Marshall vs. Ickes

Verne Marshall is back again. This time he has "discovered" that Secretary Ickes will take over authority of the Federal Communications Commission and "assume administrative censorship of the news wire services."

Marshall is head of the "No Foreign War Committee," and his tenure of office has been marked by sensational, but soap bubbly disclosures reminding of the Dies committee at its worst. For a time he subsided, and there was a hope that perhaps he had relapsed into richly deserved obscurity.

But it was not to be, and now he returns to the rostrum with a "discovery" designed to set the hair of every honest newspaperman on edge—censorship by Ickes! He was rather aptly answered by the self-same Mr. Ickes with the observation that what Mr. Marshall needed was a nurse, not a censor.

May it be said on behalf of the administration that not in its wildest days has it ever considered a project so impossible as censorship of the news services by Secretary Ickes. There may be, in time of war, censorship of a kind. It is necessary, just as it was necessary during World War I. But it is safe to say that that censorship will not be by Secretary Ickes. Washington well knows that a howl would arise to equal any the world has ever known.

In the meantime, may it be pleasantly recorded that Marshall has picked an adversary well-matched in vituperation, innuendo and catch-as-catch-can verbal wrestling. Maybe it will give the rest of the country a needed peace and quiet—from Marshall.

By capturing another 30 to 40 miles of shoreline daily, the dashing Briton will presently have surrounded Africa.

Georgia Editors Say:

STONE MOUNTAIN MEMORIAL

(From The Milledgeville Union-Recorder.) Representative Jack Williams, of Ware county, is urging the Georgia assembly to do something about getting the Stone Mountain Memorial completed.

"It would be worth a million dollars a year to this state," the Waycross publisher declares. "I would like to see some self-liquidating plan presented. Once completed there should be no upkeep to the monument."

Stone Mountain is one of the wonders of the world. That the original plans were not completed because of a temperamental and egotistical artist, and a set of negligent and irresponsible spendthrifts who were in charge of financing it, is a crying shame. Stone Mountain, as a completed memorial, could be an asset of inestimable value, not only to Georgia, but neighboring states, and if Editor Jack Williams can set in motion some plan to finish the work begun these many years ago, he will deserve and receive the thanks of the entire state.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER

BIG STICK IN THE FAR EAST WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Expert opinion here inclines to the theory that unless strong measures are promptly taken, the Japanese will move against Singapore or the Netherlands Indies in about a month, or perhaps sooner. If they do move, and are successful, the war in the Far East will be lost. It may prove one of the major misfortunes of our Japan now, before the approaching crisis finds the Navy Department both badly divided on policy, and in the hands of men without real Far Eastern experience.

American officers with this experience, who have seen the Japanese navy in action, are virtually unanimous that strong measures can be taken at little risk to ourselves. A mere gesture, such as the sending of a flotilla of cruisers on a "courtesy visit" to Singapore, is considered enough to frighten the Japanese into good behavior for a long time to come.

MATCHWOOD FACTORIES These men who know the Japanese strength at first hand are firmly convinced it is vastly exaggerated. While they admit the Japanese navy is fairly impressive in quantity, they hold its quality in contempt and predict it could be dealt with adequately in six months by the U. S. Navy's Pacific squadron. Furthermore, the Japanese islands themselves are extremely vulnerable. All the war industries, for example, are concentrated in the Osaka-Yokohama region and, being housed in factories of paper and matchwood, might conceivably be put out of production by fire bombs from the planes of a single aircraft carrier.

Consequently many of the Far Easterners in our Navy feel that failure to draw the issue now, before trouble arises, will prove an error comparable to the Anglo-French failure to draw the issue with Italy at the beginning of the war. And, while they do not all go quite so far, almost every one of them privately thinks that cruisers should have been sent to Singapore, and other similar measures taken, long before this.

Unfortunately, the chief of naval operations, Admiral Harold R. Stark, is a rather cautious, elaborately methodical indolent. He, like all other virtues, possesses little dash or boldness. During his career, only five months in 1917 were passed in Asiatic waters. Among the other members of the general board of the Navy, Far Eastern experience is not common. The Far Easterners' bold strategy is supported by many senior officers of the utmost distinction, such as Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, one of the ablest men the Navy has had in many years. But, like Admiral Yarnell, they are in the minority. The general board are haunted by the fear that any measures we may take will risk reprisals from Japan, and that we shall find ourselves still involved with the Japanese when a threat from the European Axis power calls for greater naval strength in the Atlantic.

JAPANESE WAR PLANS Unless the President turns for advice to the men who know the Far Eastern picture, we may remain immobilized. And it is difficult to exaggerate the seriousness of the possible consequences of a timid American policy in the Far East.

The present Far Eastern situation is reasonably simple. Some months ago, under pressure from the German advisers who now control the Japanese navy, Japan withdrew her troops from China and concentrating them on the islands of Hainan and Formosa. Simultaneously, strong naval detachments were sent southward, and Indo-China was occupied. Preparations for a further move were then put on foot. These preparations are now complete, down to the accumulation of transport for at least five army divisions, and the sending of technicians to the airfields of Japan, and the sending of technicians to the airfields of Japan, and the sending of technicians to the airfields of Japan.

Singapore, the main goal of the Japanese, is thought to be invulnerable to direct attack by sea. It has lately been considerably reinforced, both with troops and planes, and especially with the latter. Even now, however, it may not be strong enough to ward off a Japanese land attack, beginning with the landing of troops on the Malay Peninsula beyond the city's defenses. Moreover, it is generally believed that five divisions are sufficient to overcome the defenses of the Netherlands Indies. And, as Sumatra is just across the Straits of Malacca, within actual sight of the British base, the loss of the Netherlands Indies would render Singapore almost useless.

Singapore may seem far off to be of importance to this country. Yet Singapore is the only potential base for our fleet within 2,000 miles. If it goes, the Japanese will be almost immune to attack in the Far East. They will also be able to block the Burma road, China's last contact with the outer world; to command the Indian ocean and threaten Australia and New Zealand, and to cut off both this country's and Britain's supplies of rubber and tin. In short, the development that now threatens will prove downright tragic if it comes.

FIRMNESS PAYS As has been said, the men who really know the Far East believe a mere gesture, such as the sending of the cruiser flotilla mentioned above, will be sufficient to keep the Japanese quiet. Last summer when the American fleet left Honolulu, the Japanese navy was overcome with panic, moved out to its battle stations and stood ready to fight until our ships were located. Last fall, when the Japanese were full of dire threats against this country, a little verbal firmness by the President and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox was sufficient to bring Japanese Foreign Minister Matsuoaka and other Japanese officials, bowing and hissing politely, to our embassy to bewail a misunderstanding. The Japanese pay in dealing with Japan. It is to be hoped we shall not let the whole Far East go by default for want of a little timely firmness.

Need for Standardization.

We use, at home, one of those glass contraptions known as coffee makers. A couple of bulbs in vertical position, with a glass tube that runs down into the lower. And a few other small details for the straining of the coffee, etc. You know 'em, probably have one at your home.

It so happened, the other day, Flossie, the brunette who presides over the destinies of kitchen and laundry and so on, broke the upper of the two glass bowls of the coffee maker. Must have been in a moment of mental aberration. And so it became necessary to get a replacement for the broken part.

They didn't have one to fit at the usual store for such things, though they seemed to have a score of different types. So we telephoned one of the largest establishments in town which retails such things and told them the name we had discovered on the bottom of the electric unit.

They told us the particular make was no longer on the market, but if we would get the model number we'd find on the bottom, we could contact the local branch of the manufacturer and secure our replacement.

We looked up that number and (this is truth, not a joke) discovered it was "CAT879P100-W550-V15."

So we telephoned the manufacturer and, in a day or two, expect him to deliver the requisite replacement for our broken coffee maker. In the meantime we are making coffee by the courtesy and kindness of neighbors who are so plutocratic they possess two of the contraptions.

Now To

My Point.

The reason for telling that little personal experience is that, I think, it points a moral. A moral on the need of standardization. There must be, I suppose, scores of makes and models of coffee makers. Yet, in all essential respects, they are alike. They operate on the same principal and the same proportion of coffee to water, cooked for the same time under the same heat, if one makes coffee indistinguishable from the other.

With the nation faced by a problem of industrial production to meet the needs of defense and of aid-to-Britain, why indulge in so wasteful a practice of making

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Behind The Times NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Slowly but irresistibly since we Wendell Willkie started to expound that which he called his political flossy last summer the realization, has been dawning on me that I am at least two decades, and possibly three decades, behind the times in my concept of the middle west, and probably of the small town almost everywhere in the United States. My mental picture has remained that of an unpaved main street, a town hall where wandering entertainers fired up the stove three or four times a winter to sing illustrated songs, a local weekly paper, an educational system which expired half-way through high school, a fixed population composed almost entirely of native Americans and a two-party political mentality which never heard of social gains and used the word "social" only as a noun, meaning an ice cream or strawberry party on the lawn of the M. E. church. (In the basement in case of rain.)

The Hoosier remains a distinct breed, to be sure, and Willkie remains a Hoosier, but the scene has changed since he turned his back on Indiana, and anyone who still thinks of Hoosier in terms of simple and honest but shrewd rusticity is living in the past.

I doubt that Willkie himself has really made that mistake, and suspect that his emphasis on open-faced, boyish political homeliness in the late campaign was something which the actors used to call hokum or hoke and now call corn. That was the last stand of the great American hick—may he rest in peace—and Willkie was not a hick but a slicker. And the Hoosier to whom he addressed this appeal at the homecoming show were slickers who had put themselves into costume and a mood, as in some other local American festivals the people dress up in fur caps and fringe to recall for a day the civilization of the little brown jug.

Just a Burlesque A wise and honest Hoosier journalist of my acquaintance who covered the show and favored Willkie in the campaign told me in October that his fellow Hoosiers had corned it up so extravagantly that, far from arousing nostalgia in him, they had cured him of his old longing. His Indiana was dead and buried on the banks of the Wabash, and these people were frisking about in a very depressing burlesque.

Willkie's own Indiana has become an industrial state with an industrial population which is urban even in the country. The factories and works have spread out beyond the old city lines, which used to be the demarcation between soft comfort and hardy misery, sophistication and chew-tobacco innocence, "way up into Michigan and over Ohio and Illinois. As of the period of which I retain a mental picture, and which Willkie revived, only to discover that after such a long time dead, it had reached a high state of kipper, college education was largely restricted to the sons and daughters of the better-off and a few remarkably ambitious young ones of the relatively poor.

There is no need to cite statistics to show the extent of the change in this respect. But obviously the reason why the crack-barrel philosopher is no more—not that he ever really was—is that he would argue out of breath in an hour and would remain thereafter an affected and ignorant bore. I say he never really was because the few men who actually did business as crack-barrel philosophers were really smart humorists who worked in dialect.

Far Out Of Date

By imputing to a whole area of population their carefully exaggerated, professional version of the local language and thought they gave all these people a chance to think of themselves as salty wits of the keenest intelligence. Even after they have been gone to the cities for years as some grownup, one-gallus Hoosiers still conjure themselves as crack-barrel philosophers when they get a little tight at reunions. But the effect is pretty sad, because it is so far out of date.

It occurs to me that the syndicated comic columnist of our journalism might be regarded as the successor to the crack-barrel philosopher, for I often find repeated, as original thought, both in speech and in letters to the editor, ideas, including errors, which I have seen before in print. I do not know how to square that with the undeniable spread, not to say necessarily the advance, of education, so I will neatly ignore the question and proceed.

My conclusion is that if Willkie had acknowledged the change in his native section and, all through his campaign, had emphasized the fact that the great American hick has been laid away in his celluloid Sunday collar and Sunday suit, he would have relieved himself of an awkward pose and the campaign of an artificial quality which confused many people. He said, mostly, and especially on the subject of war, just what President Roosevelt was saying, but the President spoke in Harvades and Willkie in rube dialect.

will be given greater publicity next month than ever before, when the Southern Motion Picture Trades exposition is staged at the Auditorium-Armory.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

WOMEN JURORS I am glad to see that the senate, or rather that the members of our state senate, are big, strong men, not afraid of being locked up overnight with a lady who might be serving with them on a jury.

There were some of the more timorous souls who advanced the idea they might be compromised and the bright shield of their moral escutcheon marred by being locked up with, say, ten good-men-and-true and a couple of feminine jurors.

Of all the preposterous ideas ever advanced in a legislative hall, the claim that bad moral conditions might develop if women were allowed to serve on Georgia juries was the most preposterous of all. It was too preposterous to be offensive.

I will admit that the average jury, always allowing for exceptions, looks like a composite picture of professional mediocrity, but that is because so many judges are so lenient in allowing excuses that, by and large, most juries have too many members who make a sort of profession of serving on juries.

But, even so, I think the ladies would be safe if locked up with such a jury. The laws of locking up are not so tough as they stand and if they are found to be difficult they can be amended. I do not even insist the appearance of juries would be improved by the addition of women to the jury panels. Nor, for that matter, do I think the intellectual level of juries would be raised were women given a place on them. And again, I do not think the quality of jury service would be improved.

It simply is preposterous to refuse women a place on juries. And I hope there are not enough timorous members of the house who are afraid to be locked up with one, to block passage of the bill.

NOT ESSENTIALLY IMPORTANT

I saw the vote in the Tennessee legislature which gave the ballot to women. Tennessee's vote was needed to give the required majority to amend the constitution of the United States.

I was a college student at the time, and I recall going to the sessions and saying to myself, "This is historical. I always will remember this."

I remember that it happened. But, oddly enough, I have forgotten the name of the legislator who cast the deciding vote to pass the bill in the Tennessee legislature. And I find that no woman voter knows it, except, perhaps, those professionally engaged.

I recall that Carrie Chapman Catt was a very aggressive person and, to my collegiate eyes, a bit obnoxious because she was so aggressive. But those were the days of parades and bricks hurled by the ladies intent on getting the ballot. It must have been the prejudices of youth. In later years I saw the lady and she was just a positive, but nice, old lady with a cause already won. And, therefore, calmer.

I am glad the ladies got the vote, although I think they got it under false pretenses. They should have had it because they were citizens and entitled to it. But they got it on the basis they were going to remake the political structure of the nation. The purity of womanhood was going to purify politics and drive from it the boss and all his evils.

If we view it from that viewpoint we know it was not essentially important that woman be given the ballot.

EXAGGERATED THE PROBLEMS

All that was accomplished by giving the ballot to women was an exaggeration of the already existing faults. This is sad but true.

Almost without exception, the women followed the economic and political beliefs of their families' males, husbands, fathers, brothers. This occasionally is hotly denied by the ladies, but it is true just the same.

They solved nothing. They did not eliminate the bosses. They merely gave the bosses more votes to deal with. In most instances, they improved his majorities.

Let me hasten to say I do not mean all this critically. It was but natural.

Here and there one finds a chapter of the National League of Women Voters which is active and which is, with the assistance of the males who think as they do about the ballot, accomplishing something in local government. But in no single state are they powerful enough really to influence a state legislature. And only on occasion does one find even a city council which will lend an ear.

The same thing will happen to jury duty. The women ought to be allowed to serve on juries because they are citizens. They will not improve jury duty any more than they improved politics. They will, however, force the cleaning up of jury rooms just as their early political reform was the forcing of election officials to find slightly cleaner voting places in less objectionable localities.

Let me hasten to say that I think the ladies are God's perfect creatures and that I think they ought to be allowed to serve on juries. And all I have said is that they aren't any worse than the men.

I do hope the big, strong men in the house aren't too timorous and fearful about their morals. Let the ladies serve. They may cause doilies to be put under the cuspidors in the jury rooms and this will help. The floors look awful. And the jury deputies will change shirts more often.

Let the ladies serve!

A Fable Concerning a Heathen Who Didn't Like Our Kind of Justice

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

A certain heathen took his staff in hand and set forth in search of a civilized land wherein to make his home.

After some days he came to a tumble-down shack where a woman and four children sat on a porch eating crusts and weeping.

"We are being punished," said the woman, "because my husband sold bootleg liquor. The judge gave him a year's free board and lodging and sentenced us to live on crusts until he returns to us."

"What curious justice!" said the heathen.

He resumed his journey and soon came upon a man who moaned and groaned in agony of spirit.

"What troubles you?" asked the heathen.

"I am being punished," said the man, "because my clerk stole 50 bucks from me. The law gave him some years of free lodging, and sentenced me to pay the cost. I am taxed to support the rascal because he robbed me."

"What a strange country!" said the heathen.

Next day he saw a man being led to a scaffold.

"Why are they hanging you?" he asked.

"I am being hanged," said the man, "for the crime of being poor. I was wrongfully accused of killing a neighbor, and would have been acquitted if I had had enough money to hire the best lawyer and pay for appeal. Being poor, I could not buy justice and the judge sentenced me to hang."

"What a dreadful idea!" said the heathen.

He walked on sorrowing and came up on a man who tore his hair and cursed in helpless wrath.

"Why so much grief?" asked the heathen.

"I am being punished," said the man, "for the crime of being successful. A poor guy bumped my car and then sued me, and the matter was tried before a jury of poor men. When the lawyer told them I was rich, they soaked me the limit. The law even imposed punitive taxes to punish me for making money."

When the heathen saw another man sorrowing, he said: "I know you are being punished, but why?"

"Because a woman didn't like me," said the man, "I supported her for two years, and then she got tired of me and the judge ordered me to pay her a life pension of two hundred bucks a month."

"It's going home," said the heathen, "where people are merely heathenish."

RFC Will Build Tin Smelter Plant

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Jesse H. Jones, federal loan administrator, announced today plans to finance the construction of tin and magnesium plants to provide essential metals for the defense program.

He said the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had contracted with N. V. Billiton-Maatschappij, an experienced Dutch smelting firm, to construct a tin smelter here and had lent $9,250,000 to a San Francisco firm to build a magnesium plant near San Francisco.

The tin smelter, Jones explained, would belong to the RFC but would be built and operated by the Dutch company to process 18,000 tons of Bolivian tin a year.

THE CHRISTIAN COUNCIL

ATLANTA, GA.

TO THE CITIZENS OF ATLANTA:

The Christian Council is deeply interested in the endeavor of the Churches' Homes for Girls to raise $10,000 in Atlanta to free these homes from all indebtedness. We deeply appreciate the four friends who have offered to give a provisional $11,500 if Atlanta will raise $10,000.

These homes for girls have been in operation in Atlanta for twenty-seven years. They have ministered to 22,000 working girls during these years. The influence of the homes is suggested by the fact that ninety-five per cent of these girls have made good.

The Christian Council is happy to commend this undertaking to the people of Atlanta.

Sincerely yours,
RYLAND KNIGHT, President.

The Churches Homes for Girls, Inc., opened its first Home for business girls, in 1914. Since that time more than 22,000 girls have lived in these six Homes and 95% of them have made good.

Three of the six Homes are mortgaged for $21,500.00, the other three are free of encumbrance. If this $21,500.00 is paid off this great institution whose motto is: "HELPING GIRLS TO HELP THEMSELVES AND OTHERS," will be able to increase its usefulness to a large degree.

Non-residents have given their checks for $10,000.00 of the amount needed, and one Atlantan has agreed to pay the last $1,500.00. The $10,000.00 checks are held subject to Atlanta raising the remaining $10,000.00, but contributors of this sum have agreed to match dollar for dollar raised toward the desired goal.

This appeal first made two weeks ago, has resulted so far in raising $1,600.00; we need $8,400.00 more and we would like to get it at once before the Red Cross call begins on March 10. Surely Atlanta has 84 loyal men and women who will give $100.00 each to this cause. Or, if not 84 to give $100, then surely there are 840 who can and will give $10.00.

The Board of Directors is very grateful to The Christian Council for commending, through its able President, this effort to increase the usefulness of the Churches Homes. We also wish to publicly express our appreciation for the cooperation of those three splendid organizations of Atlanta business women, the Women's Chamber of Commerce, the Pilot Club, and the Altrusa Club.

Having Good Time At Press Institute As He Always Does

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 19.—Attending the fourteenth annual meeting of the Georgia Press Institute, sponsored by the Georgia Press Association and the University of Georgia.

Usual dinner tonight at the Memorial Hall on the university campus. For the rest of the week, addresses in the university chapel, "round table" meetings in which weekly editors discuss problems of advertising and circulation and how to keep a linotype operator sticking to his job—and all that. And luncheons and dinners at which various daily papers are the hosts. Saturday is The Constitution's day—when K. L. Simpson, of the Washington Bureau of the AP—the Associated Press to laymen—will talk on national or international affairs. Mr. Simpson—as you have read in the news columns—won a Pulitzer prize for his magnificent story, "The Unknown Soldier."

John Drewry, dean of journalism at the university, kind of looks after things. You know his Sunday column in The Constitution—about books. Bunch of his former students are at Atlanta papers. More of them on small town dailies—and working up. All pretty well trained. The papers give them a break during vacations—a job where they can gain actual experience.

Some of them get along so rapidly they never go back to finish their course. Some go back for their degrees.

Harking Back.

Several city newspapers have contributed a nationally-known speaker to these Press Institutes. I wish I had a list covering the past 13 years. Forgive me if I recall back a few on which I had to "ride herd," seeing they were delivered on time and caught their trains back home and all that.

Arthur Brisbane, who delivered a Washington's Birthday address to a multitude which swarmed the university gymnasium. And Bob Ripley, who did not understand his chapel audience in the forenoon was almost identical with his luncheon audience just afterward—and made the same speech twice.

Nor Bugs Baer. Nor that incomparable beauty who was Mrs. Baer.

There are big shots as guests of the current Press Institute. I prefer to talk of those who were because the news columns will give you plenty about those who are.

Mr. Pew Chats.

Marlin E. Pew, now passed to glory. Then editor of Editor and Publisher, the newspaperman who was the Constitution's guest a few years ago and had arrived an evening sooner than expected. We had met and got acquainted.

It was along about 11 p. m. when I ran across Mr. Pew, on his way to bed.

"The evening is yet young," I suggested. "Would you care to wander hither and thither and learn what the night life of Athens—in this hotel—might bring forth?"

"In the interest of journalistic research," he said, "let us proceed."

We proceeded to the rooms of Mr. and Mrs. John Marsh, who had invited a few friends to drop in and discuss the situation. General Mrs. Marsh was then merely Mrs. Marsh. "Gone With the Wind" was cooking on MacMillan's stove but she was nobody but just Peggy. Which, I may remark, she still is—with Georgia newspaper people.

The room contained one dresser, one stool for unpacking baggage and one bed—luckily a large one. For it was occupied by old and young—in numbers. Late arrivals sat on the steam radiator. Oh, I forgot two chairs.

So Mr. Marlin E. Pew and I sat on the floor, leaning comfortably against the wall.

Somebody, as a mere gesture, invited Mr. Pew to say a few words if he could edify them in, because I was indulging in several interesting—to me—personal reminiscences.

I'll never forget that evening—or morning. Mr. Pew sat on the floor, gladly accepting a pillow in lieu of cushion, and talked until 2:30 a. m.

That sounds like a nasty crack. But nobody left. Mr. Pew had things to say. People to talk about. He had been the principal encourager of young Lindbergh. He knew everybody in the national spotlight. He didn't talk about himself. He talked about those folks. Opened them up and revealed their insides. Not as a muckraker—because he liked and admired most of them. But he told things that could never get into print. We were all sorry when he decided it was bedtime.

To me, the high spots of these annual Press Institute meetings are the "bedroom parties" after the programs are over.

A party in a private dining room, rented for the occasion, is likely to be a bore.

But a "Come up to Room 124 after a while if you feel like it" is likely to be a huge success.

I always feel like it. And I hope I always shall.

High light of this meeting is expected to be the "tackety party" to be given Friday evening by Herscoe V. Jenkins, publisher of the Savannah Morning News and Evening Press. Mr. Jenkins persuaded Miss Emily Woodward to "kinder run it" for him and she has notified all and sundry to dig up the "tackiest" costume to be found in the attic.

I am looking forward to seeing Chancellor Sanford dressed up as a hick from Hicksville.

CHURCHILL DENIES SLUR ON AMERICA

Editor Constitution: There have been repeated allegations in the press, some of which have even found an echo in the Congressional Record, to the effect that Mr. Winston Churchill had made a statement in 1936 deprecating America's participation in the war of 1914-1918.

The alleged statement as reproduced in various newspapers reads as follows:

"Legally we owe this debt to the U. S. but logically we don't, and this is because America should have minded her own business and stayed out of the World War. If she had done so, the Allies would have made peace with Germany in the spring of 1917, thus saving over a million British, French, American and other lives and preventing the subsequent rise of Fascism and Nazism."

As a number of persons and some newspapers have apparently been deceived by an utter untruth put forward with the sole purpose of destroying good relations between the U. S. A. and Great Britain, the British embassy wishes to state on the authority of the prime minister that it is totally untrue that he ever made any statement to the above or similar effect.

HORRORS MAY BRING SPIRITUAL REBIRTH

Editor Constitution: In a day when world foundations are being shaken it is heartening to be able to find in a great daily paper such editorials as have recently appeared bearing upon great moral and spiritual issues. You are to be highly commended.

We think in the permissive will of God sometimes a wicked nation is permitted to chastise a less wicked nation for their purification and betterment, but as so ably expressed in Sunday's editorial, "The Free Will of Man," the horrors of Nazism are but temporary. For God still lives and the principles enunciated by Him never die.

A re-emphasis on spiritual values, the things unseen, seems to be coming upon us and out of common aims, common sorrows, common interests grows the common brotherhood of mankind. "God moves in a mysterious way, His wonders to perform."

If the horrors of the present hour and the darkness which shrouds the earth brings a rebirth of spiritual ideals, a quickening of the consciousness of God, then we shall see the things which now make afraid as but stepping stones to higher things and He shall see of the travail of His soul and be satisfied.

TECHNICAL SCHOOL FOR NEGROES ASKED

I was in Atlanta a few nights ago, having carried my team up to play in the preliminaries of the Clark-Renaissance. I met an old friend of mine and during the ensuing conversation he asked me two questions: "If you were a representative in the Georgia legislature, what bill would you present to the body?" "What is to become of the old Clark University campus?"

These questions have started a train of thought in my mind. Clark University at present is located three miles from Atlanta on the South Pryor-Federal Prison car line and is one of the oldest colleges sponsored by the Methodist church in Georgia. A new plant is now being constructed for the college on the west side, hence what is to become of the old campus, buildings, etc.?

If I were privileged to be a member of the Georgia legislature I should present a bill urging the people of Georgia to purchase these buildings and convert this campus into an industrial or technical school for Negro youth similar to the establishment at Monroe for white.

At present trades or vocations taught in high schools are inadequate in that the emphasis is put on the academic work and when the course is finished the boys or girls are not particularly fitted for anything, having been exposed to a smattering of this and a smattering of that.

There are hundreds of Negro boys who are eager for technical training—the lack of which makes for their drifting into "anything they can get to do" and quite often into undesirable occupations that make them a liability to society. Negro boys, too, like to make things, grow things, mix chemicals, experiment with machinery, and to learn plumbing. In order to learn these things, now, it is necessary for them to go to an institution of higher learning which most Negro boys cannot afford to do.

Since I am a Negro and therefore cannot be a member of the legislative body of my state, I hope that someone who can will be touched with the vision of the great need of converting the old Clark campus into a school such as I described above and thusly help Negro youth to make a place for itself in society that will reflect credit upon the race and to the state which it lives in. A school of this kind will pay dividends in reduced funds needed to maintain reformatories, in lessening of tax money needed to reduce sickness and alleviate poverty.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

Attention is again called to the liquor situation in Georgia in the pending bills in the General Assembly, one of which, the Daves bill, asking for a return of prohibition. The arguments presented at the public hearing on these bills were quite interesting. It is apparent that the liquor question is more alive in Georgia than many might have thought.

There was only one speech in favor of retaining the present liquor law at the public hearing the other day. Mr. Atkinson, of Chatham, made that speech, declaring that conditions, in his opinion, were better today than under prohibition. Since the hearing, Mr. Lovett, of Laurens is quoted in the press as having said that the citizens of Georgia must understand that they will have to find some way to raise $1,800,000 in additional taxes if they repeal the liquor law.

Apart from the relatively small percentage of citizens who make and sell liquor or who otherwise profit from the traffic, the one question which we have to consider in this matter of liquor is: What is the best way to deal with the evil of drunkenness? Even the drunkards, when sober, will agree to this proposition. I have yet to hear anyone defend liquor as a good thing for society, though I do seem to recall that some man made a speech here a few years ago in which he was quoted as saying something about the test of a gentleman being his ability to drink well, or something like that. I still think, however, that his remark was probably lifted out of its context.

I am happy to believe that in the present discussion we shall have full and frank expression, facing the facts—all of the facts—and reaching a decision on the basis of what is the best for the largest number of people. Along that course lies the solution of every problem.

Hence this question: Are we better off today than we were in the days of prohibition? I do not presume to know all the facts essential to the final answer to this question, but I submit one or two such facts.

Chief M. A. Hornsby of the Atlanta police department, in a letter under date of February 10, 1941, says: "Whisky was legalized in Atlanta in April, 1938. There were 18,828 arrests for drunkenness in Atlanta in 1937. In 1940 there were 26,035 persons arrested on this charge."

Has legalized liquor reduced bootlegging? That was one of the claims of the proponents of the present law. The alcohol tax unit of the Internal Revenue office in Atlanta makes this report: "Still captured in 1939, 1,438; in 1940, 1,501; past six months, 882. Persons arrested in 1939, 3,328; 1940, 2,912. Distilled spirits captured, year ending June 30, 1939, 50,915 gallons; year ending June 30, 1940, 40,739; past six months, 24,494."

It appears that there was a slight decrease in apprehending illicit liquor in the year ending June 30, 1940, but for the past six months there was an increase all along the line.

Since I am a Negro and therefore cannot be a member of the legislative body of my state, I hope that someone who can will be touched with the vision of the great need of converting the old Clark campus into a school such as I described above and thusly help Negro youth to make a place for itself in society that will reflect credit upon the race and to the state which it lives in. 'Swamp Water' Author Feted By Atlantans

Vereen Bell's Initial Novel Purchased for Motion Pictures.

By RALPH MCGILL.
Vereen Bell, whose first novel, "Swamp Water," a story of adventure out of the lives of the people on the edges of Georgia's 700 square miles of Okefenokee swamp, appeared yesterday, faces his second day of entertainment in our town today.

The novel by this Georgian, son of Judge and Mrs. R. C. Bell, of Cairo, Ga., has been purchased by the movies and seems destined to become a far greater success than the usual first novel.

Bell, a self-possessed but modest young man, is holding up well, but from this time on will have much more sympathy for a gun-shy bird dog. He will, after the reception and autographing, hardly be steady to wing and shot.

Yesterday he was honored with a luncheon and in the afternoon a tea at Davison's tea room with the supreme court members, including Chief Justice Charles S. Reid, present.

His father, Judge Bell, is a veteran member of Georgia's supreme court bench. Today he will be the guest at a luncheon at Rich's and in the afternoon there will be a public reception for him.

Judge Bell, who insists his son received all his talents from his mother, is mildly but pleasantly surprised at his son's writing career. It is a bit amazing in that he has sold everything he has written for fiction magazines.

Last week's Saturday Evening Post contained the latest of his bird dog articles and one of his rare non-fiction pieces. It was illustrated with color photographs.

His publisher, represented here by Angus Cameron, the New York editor of Little, Brown, Little, is enthusiastic about the future of the book. Cameron sought out Bell's literary agent after a discussion with fiction editors who named Bell as the young short story writer most likely to do an acceptable first novel.

Bell lives at Thomasville, where he works and hunts. He is one of the better quail shots in Georgia and also an excellent duck shot. He follows the field trials and it is from them that he obtains first-hand material for his stories. Bird dog people know them as the only stories being written today which are flawless in their treatment of hunting and field trials.

Mrs. Bell accompanied him. They married some years ago when he sold two stories to a boys' magazine for a total of $50. He wired his parents from a Florida city, not far distant from Thomasville, to tell of the marriage and asked in the telegram his parents look in book three of the encyclopedia in advance, giving all the details about the decision to get married. They have two children.

Five U. S. Firms Seek To Lease 38 Dane Ships

Deal Nearly Complete; Aid-to-Britain Angle Is Speculated.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Announcement that United States shippers were negotiating for the charter of 38 Danish vessels tied up in this country, aroused immediate speculation today that this would make more American merchant ships available to Great Britain.

New York shipping circles said the negotiations were "practically complete." The ships would fly the Danish flag and be manned by Danish crews, but would operate only from the United States to South America, Australia and the Far East. Five American firms are interested in the deal.

Maritime Commission officials said the negotiations were being conducted with their "knowledge and consent," but declined to predict whether or not the deal would result in releasing American tonnage to Britain. The Danish tonnage might be no more than enough to meet the needs of this country they said, since the present shipping situation is "extremely tight."

on it. The noon meal yesterday was typical, for example. Here it is:

Roast pork shoulder.
Apple sauce.
Sage dressing.
Pork gravy.
Mashed potatoes.
Boiled turnips and greens.
Scalloped corn.
Lettuce and tomato salad.
Raisin cobbler.
Bread and sugar.
Milk and coffee.

Yes, all of that! Which is a typical noon-time meal. This is the heaviest meal of the day, because there is an afternoon of work ahead that requires interior decorating of the satisfying sort.

But they still peel potatoes by hand in the Army. Lieutenant H. L. Ash, who with Lieutenant G. B. Church, serves as mess officer, said requisitions are in for automatic peelers, run by electricity. Fast as these new gadgets are, however—the eyes still must be removed by hand.

Other labor-saving devices on order and soon to be installed include electric mixers.

Lieutenant Ash also said that within a few weeks, more progress will come to the mess in the form of trays—with six partitions on them. These will do away with the old-fashioned and time-honored mess kits, which require a bit of practice before a rookie gets the hang of how to hold them.

After the boys have eaten, they file out into the yard and wash their mess kits in large tubs of hot water, using a big brush to scrape off the kits. (There's hardly ever any food left in the kit!)

The mess functions with the clockwork efficiency that characterizes the Army. Meals are on time. Each man has a job to do and does it. Besides Lieutenants Ash and Church, both of whom have had years of experience with mess in the CCC, there are four mess sergeants, C. K. Albright, T. J. Sheffield, L. B. Loveless and E. R. Tumlin.

The young soldiers have the best of drinking water, too, for there are two large automatic water coolers, one in each hall.

Vegetables are bought daily from the local markets, by the post exchange, which also takes care of furnishing other kitchen supplies.

No smoking is allowed either in the dining halls or the kitchen. But this doesn't seem to be a hardship. The boys at the tables are too busy eating and the boys at the counters are too busy dishing it out.

"Hurry up, Joe! Time for chow!"

Police Group Asks Curb on Pardons

A resolution recommending drastic restrictions in the clemency powers of the Governor was passed yesterday by the Georgia Peace Officers' Association at the close of a two-day meeting at a downtown hotel.

The group voted to have its legislative committee prepare a bill to be presented to the legislature requiring that all pardons granted be concurred in by all members of the State Prison and Parole Commission.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste

If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Kidneys may need help the same as bowels, so ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

700 Reserve Officers Hear Colonel Moses

Address Is Feature of Defense Week Observance.

Lieutenant Colonel P. S. Moses, state president of the Reserve Officers' Association, last night told 700 reservists that the War Department was fully cognizant of the problems facing reserve officers going from civilian life into active military service.

Speaking at Georgia Tech, he told the reserve officers he had just returned from Washington, where he conferred with officials of the War Department, and was assured that military authorities will have everything necessary for the reserve officer.

The address by Colonel Moses was a part of the program for National Defense Week, and five other addresses are scheduled to be delivered by prominent military men this week.

that much on a $300,000 project." Razing of the old building will be completed about March 1, Wellborn said.

Week's Movies Lean Toward Polite Tease

Titles: 'Nice Girl,' 'Come Live With Me,' 'Victory,' 'Dulcy.'

By LEE ROGERS,
Motion Picture Editor.

Hollywood's entertainment offerings for Atlanta this week from the advance notices, appear to be leaning almost as far as the Hays office will let them toward the polite tease—how much teasing the winsome gals of the movies do, remains to be seen.

But a shadow is even hung over Deanna Durbin in a film opening today at the Fox called "Nice Girl!" in which we are led to believe, due to the question mark in the title, that Deanna overthrows the sweet innocence of her former eight successes. However, exploitation men are quick to point out she is still the same sweet Deanna, just reaching another stage of growing up.

(Deanna's movie audience must be educated. Deanna is getting married in June and she must grow up sufficiently in the meantime for her audience to accept the fact she's not a child-wife.)

The biggest tease of the week, from a title standpoint, is Hedy Lamarr's new opus, "Come Live With Me." It's an invitation flung drawing Jimmy Stewart's way at Loew's opening tomorrow, and we are told Jimmy takes her up on the invite in the picture, but not until after making it legal with a marriage ceremony.

The title "Victory," for the Betty Field-Fredric March South Seas thriller opening today at the Roxy, seems innocent enough until you view some of the advance publicity pictures showing love scenes between the two in which Betty is clad in something less than the sarongs made famous by the other Paramount Pictures tropical heroine, Dottie Lamour.

"Dulcy," title of the Rialto top-flighter beginning tomorrow, is baffling in itself, but when the ads feature Ann Sothern to best advantage and quote her saying such as "I can tell it's love when I believe a man ven though I know he's lying" you can rest assured the cracks will be wild and furious.

"Back Street" is holding over at the Paramount theater for another week. This is the film in which Charles Boyer and Margaret Sullivan let their love in the back way.

Fox
Deanna Durbin, out to make it nine straight hits in a row, opens today at the Fox theater in a film called "Nice Girl!"

Backing her is one of the strongest supporting casts that Universal has ever given its money making star. Robert Benchley plays her father; Franchot Tone plays the smooth salesman Deanna runs away with; Robert Stack is her home-town love; Walter Brennan has another human role.

Deanna is a small town girl who is considered very nice. But she doesn't like the classification. She seeks, with Tone's help, to do something about it only to find out she didn't realize what she was bargaining for.

Roxy
Fredric March comes back to town this week in a film called "Victory" in which he stars with Betty Field at the Roxy theater opening today.

The story has a South Sea background and Betty is cast as the little native girl with four men seeking her love and attentions. They call her the "woman of disaster."

In the cast are Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Jerome Cowan, Sig Rumann, Margaret Wycherly, Fritz Feld and others. It is a Paramount picture.

ON NIGHT TRAIN—Margaret Lockwood and Rex Harrison, English film stars, are co-starred in the surprise picture of 1940, "Night Train," which opens a week's run at the Capitol theater Sunday. It was made in England.

Hollywood contemporaries, offers his latest characterization co-starred with Hedy Lamarr in "Come Live With Me," which comes to Loew's tomorrow.

Co-incidentally, or not, Stewart has had major roles in an astonishing number of recent smash box-office successes. Starting with his first major assignment in "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," Jimmy has pleased the movie audience no end with "The Shop Around the Corner," "Destiny Rides Again," "The Mortal Storm," "No Time for Comedy," and most recently, "The Philadelphia Story."

In his latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, Stewart has the role of a struggling young author whose clothing is as shiny as his ambitions. While taking lessons in parhandling from Hobo Donald Meek in New York's Central park, Stewart encounters a beautiful Austrian refugee, in the person of Hedy Lamarr. It turns out that Hedy needs a husband in order to avoid being sent back to her native land. They make a businesslike deal, marry, and the comedy situations and dialogue reportedly fly fast and furious.

Rialto
Ann Sothern, the glamorous oomph girl of the screen, really goes to town in the matter of costuming in "Dulcy," new MGM feature which opens a week's engagement at the Rialto theater tomorrow.

Miss Sothern is a well-meaning, but trouble-making, daughter of

U.S. Air Base Is Dedicated At Savannah

$3,500,000 Army Field Is Completed in 90 Days.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 19.—(AP) This historic seaside city dedicated a $3,500,000 army air base as a project built "for the preservation of American liberties, for the perpetuation of American concepts of life."

Those were the words of veteran Mayor Thomas Gamble, who said: "We feel that surrendering the greater part of the municipal airport to the government has been a distinct contribution to the national defense."

Stretching out from the speaker's stand was the vast project, converted in 90 days from an ugly, barren piece of wasteland to a modern military center with 182 buildings in which 3,500 to 4,000 men will live and work for national defense.

For public inspection, the army wheeled out seven airplanes of different types, a fast bomber, four light bombers, a small transport, and an amphibian.

Following Gamble, Base Commander Brigadier General I. H. Brereton presented Major General B. K. Yount, commanding officer of the southeastern air district, for the principal address.

Before the formal ceremonies the city of Savannah was host to distinguished guests at a luncheon and the bands of city police, Savannah High school and Benedictine College presented an hour concert at the field.

Blast-Loosened Slate Crushes Rockmart Man

Mine Operator Is Killed in Quarry Pit by Falling Piece.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. ROCKMART, Ga., Feb. 19.—Ollie C. Davis, head of the Rockmart Slate Company, was crushed to death today when a huge piece of slate, displaced by a dynamite blast, fell on him in a local quarry.

Quarry Superintendent Tommy Evans said he, Davis, and a number of workmen had set off a blast, and that they walked back to the quarry base several minutes later. The dislodged piece of slate, weighing several hundred pounds, struck Davis, crushed him to the pit floor, and rolled away.

Davis was a son of a Welsh miner who came to this section about 60 years ago and began local slate operations. He is survived by his wife; a step-daughter, Mrs. Frank M. Lipscomb, of Jacksonville, Fla.; a step-son, Robert B. Allen, of Jacksonville; two sisters, Mrs. Carrie Wright and Mrs. Luther Reid, of East Point; one uncle, the Rev. J. T. Davis, of Carrollton, and an aunt, Mrs. Mary Simpson, of Rockmart.

Rites will be held in the First Methodist church, of which he was a member, at a yet-unannounced hour Thursday, the Rev. L. F. Huckaby officiating. Interment will be in Rose Hill cemetery.

A bill to classify wines containing more than 14 per cent alcohol as liquor yesterday received the approval of the house temperance committee.

Under this bill such wines would be subject to a tax of $1 per gallon, state revenue officials said.

The committee also approved a bill by Representative Paul Etheridge, of Fulton, setting up a wine control board. Etheridge said the industry wanted to police itself and could do so through this board composed of the revenue commissioner, one member in the business and one out of the business.

at the CITY HALL

Atlanta yesterday had an unheralded but rather "acceptable" mayor—Ben Pelot, senior of the Joel Chandler Harris school. He headed a large delegation of fellow students, his constituents, to the city hall during the day, and Mayor LeCraw sat him in the executive chair and saluted him.

James L. Beavers, former chief of the Atlanta police department, yesterday celebrated his 75th birthday receiving congratulations from scores of members of the department he commanded for so many years and from friends scattered throughout the city and Georgia.

British Study Plan To Send Aid to Greeks

Experts Believe Help Can Arrive in Time To Check Hitler.

By The United Press. Britain may seek to transfer formidable land and air forces into Greece before Hitler can consolidate his Balkan diplomacy and move to force the Greeks into a dictated peace with Italy, it was intimated in London last night.

A canvass of Balkan envoys revealed growing belief that it may be a month or six weeks before Germany's Balkan army occupies Bulgaria and moves against Greece.

In the meantime, it was suggested, Hitler's army and air forces now established in Rumania may be used as a club for political pressure against Greece, Bulgaria and Turkey, seeking further concessions to the Axis.

Belief appeared to be growing in London that Greece and Britain together were preparing to turn the Greek peninsula into a battleground if Hitler attempts to occupy the country and drive the British off the European continent.

It was not believed in British quarters that Yugoslavia would submit to a German march across its territory, which Germany might need to do if she attacked Greece through Bulgaria first. In this connection, military men pointed out that Bulgaria is regarded as a nightmare for military campaigns.

Charlie Moore, driver of the fire engine, was making his first run on the machine, answering a grass fire alarm, when he met the grocery truck pulling out of an alley. After striking the truck, the fire engine careened into three parked cars, piling them in a heap. Moore was unhurt.

Considerable damage was done to the autos, belonging to Hoyt Mize, of Toccoa; A. J. Christopher, Atlanta shirt salesman, and C. F. Powell, of Atlanta.

The fire truck was damaged so badly that it could not leave the scene under its own power. Firemen hurriedly took the city's other truck to the fire, and extinguished the flames within a few minutes.

WILSON'S Weekly RECIPES

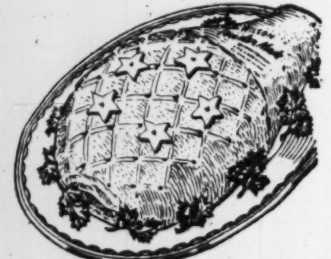

From New York to New Orleans, I find home-makers confused by the different claims made for different hams. I don't blame you. Perhaps it will simplify things if you'll remember that there is only one genuine Tender Made Ham. It is made by Wilson & Co. by a Secret Process. It is fork-tender and requires no cooking. If you prefer it hot, however, this accommodating ham heats in 5 minutes to the pound to rosy pink succulence.

George Rector
Food Consultant, Wilson & Co.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY Menu

SHRIMP COCKTAIL
WILSON'S TENDER MADE HAM
AU GEORGE
POTATOES IN CREAM
BAKED SQUASH
LIBERTY SALAD (PRUNES, CRANBERRIES, CREAM CHEESE)
CHERRY ICE CREAM
"HATCHET" COOKIES

ECONOMY TIP. You can serve practically as many people with a 12-pound Wilson's Tender Made Ham as with a 16-pound ordinary ham. Reason—ordinary ham requires up to 30 minutes baking per pound, entailing continuous oven shrinking. Tender Made Ham requires but 5 minutes heating per pound. No wasteful oven shrinkage.

Tender Made Ham AU GEORGE

Take ham from refrigerator and allow it to reach room temperature. Heat 5 minutes per pound in a 350° F. oven. With a star cookie cutter cut stars from grapefruit peel. Cook in boiling water for 30 minutes. Drain. Melt 2 cups of cranberry jelly and cook the grapefruit stars in the jelly till they become semi-transparent. Remove ham from oven, take off skin. Fasten stars onto the ham with cloves. Pour remainder of jelly over the ham. Return to oven for several basting.

THE HAM OF A THOUSAND USES

If your family is too small to eat a whole ham at one meal, your butcher will cut up your Tender Made Ham into three parts: butt, shank, and several thick, juicy center slices.

Butt end. Bake at 375° F. for 10 to 12 minutes per pound and serve hot.

Shank end. Shred the meat. Scramble it with eggs. Or serve creamed on toast. Or use it in a macaroni-ham casserole.

One is the envelope fold crown, a stitched-down triangular pleat treatment, for all the world like the flap on an envelope. The other sports the pouch pocket crown, folded and stitched down like the gathered pockets so popular on costumes, and the new pouch handbags. Short Cut To Piano Playing

What a charming accomplishment has the girl who can play the piano! She may seem a shy little miss, but as soon as she sits down at the keys, just watch the men flock around.

Any girl can acquire this social asset in simple home lessons. From the very beginning you can read music. A chart pictures life-size the part of the piano keyboard most used in popular tunes and with each key is the note that's written for it in a bar of music. The chart fits right behind your real keyboard so you can tell at once what key to strike for each note.

In our 24-page instruction book, A SHORT CUT TO PIANO PLAYING, you'll find this method of playing popular music clearly explained. Includes keyboard chart, table of chords, explanation of time values, flats and sharps. Has music of six favorite tunes for practice.

Send 15c in coins for our instruction book, A SHORT CUT TO PIANO PLAYING, to The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of instruction book.

Woman's Quiz

Q. When was peanut butter first developed?

A. About 1890. It was used especially in sanitariums to "build up" invalids.

Q. Is more or less strength required to respond to partner's opening bid in contract bridge than to make an original opening bid?

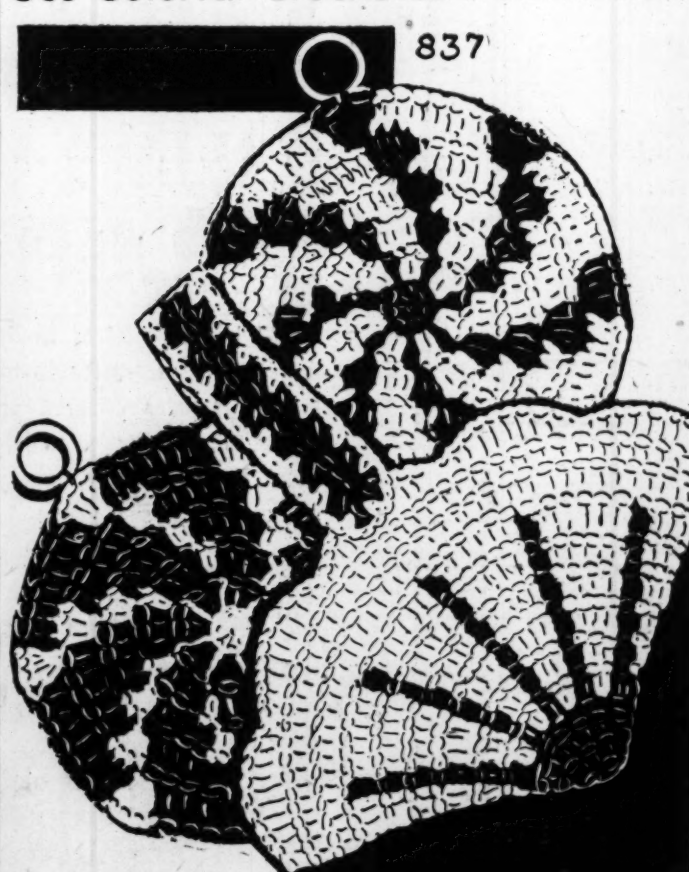

A. Less strength is required to make a responding bid, for responder knows that partner has strength enough for an opening bid.

Q. What can I do with an adolescent daughter who centers all her attention, affection, admiration and devotion on one girl friend?

A. Adolescent "crushes" are common, and usually can be looked upon as a normal phase of development. Fortunately, most of these situations are self-eliminating and if managed wisely, they do no harm. The family must be tolerant and not give the impression by word or deed that they are persecuting either party. They may judiciously introduce other young people into the home life, or arrange a visit that would temporarily separate the two. Whatever the plan, it will require nice judgment and much tolerance and patience, but it will be worth the effort.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, enclose a three-cent postage stamp and mail to The Women's Quiz, The Constitution, 1013 13th Street, N.W., Washington, D. C. For personal reply, Don't telephone; write as directed.

Reader Apologizes for His Letter

By Dr. William Brady.

You may recall a rather harsh letter I wrote about a year ago (writes a dentist)—I wrote it in a state of irritation at your suggestion that dentists surrender use of the title of Doctor to medical practitioners exclusively. I failed to see the justice or logic of your idea and frankly I surmised you must have some personal grievance or some peculiar animosity toward dentists. Now I write to apologize for my shortsightedness. I have since had the opportunity to read your booklet, "Save Your Teeth," which you were kind enough to send me in response to my ill-natured letter, and I realize I had entirely missed the substantial purpose of your suggestion. On top of that came the excellent little folder on "Pyorrhea" and the practical points you make in this folder, I am sure, will do great good in educating the public or that great portion of the population that the dentist scarcely gets a chance to educate until it is too late. I do not agree one hundred per cent with all of your teachings but in the main your advice seems both scientific and sound.

(—D. D. S.)
I thank the dentist as much for his first letter, which was a mild rebuke compared with many communications I have received from dentists, as I do for this one. Adverse criticism is sometimes as helpful as cordial approval.

For example, another dentist takes me severely to task for my incompetent advice in regard to dead teeth. That's the dentist's language—he means pulpless teeth, teeth in which the main source of nutrition, the pulp has been destroyed or, as the layman says, "the nerve killed." Such teeth may still receive some nourishment from the tissues in which they are embedded and hence are not "dead." They often serve a useful purpose for many years, and hence they should not be extracted unless there is definite evidence that they are doing harm. This dentist says my attitude is inconsistent in that I advocate retaining "dead" teeth in the jaw and yet I urge people to have dental "dead" or treatment regularly against pyorrhea.

I do not understand just what the inconsistency is, but one thing is worth mentioning here, and that is the fact that extraction or removal of a tooth in any case must be regarded as a contributing factor of pyorrhea unless the tooth is immediately replaced by a functionally efficient tooth or denture. To leave even an empty space is to impair mastication, and any lessening of mastication, natural use of the teeth, gums, jaws, inevitably brings atrophic changes, wasting, shrinkage, weakening, and that is the early stage of pyorrhea.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Smoking Question.

Our high school club is debating the smoking question and we'd like any information you may give us on the effects of smoking on the eyes, the stomach and on athletic or physical condition.

(H. F. G.)
Answer—The effect is injurious, the more so the younger the user. High school children caught smoking should be punished. I have no tract against tobacco but smokers who wish to break the tobacco habit may get some help from the monograph "Tobacco Habit"—for copy send stamped envelope bearing your address.

That Girlish Figure.
Mother thinks I don't need foundation or girdle. I am 13 and other girls my age wear them. We agreed to follow your advice. (M. H.)

Answer—you're in luck, then, for my advice is that you should adopt no such harness now or later, but instead keep yourself fit and trim by suitable setting up exercises daily and by study and practice of good posture.

The 7 Keys.

Some time ago I saw in your column, I think, an allusion to the keys of vite. It may have been a misprint, but I have been unable to learn what vite means. (Mrs. G. A. C.)

Answer—It means preservation of the characteristics of youth... better than average nutritional condition... extension of prime of life... Send 25 cents and 1-cent stamped envelope for booklet, "The Seven Keys to Vite" and get yourself some.

SAYS

Bridge Party To Be Staged Every Week for British Relief

• • • NOW THAT war relief work is a part of everyone's daily schedule, innovations are constantly appearing in the various methods devised for raising funds for the hard-pressed British. The "latest wrinkle" is a weekly bridge party to be held at British War Relief headquarters at 244 Peachtree street—the party to be a benefit affair, of course, with tickets selling for a nominal sum.

The idea has gained great momentum since it was first conceived, and already the tables for the initial party have practically all been reserved. It will be held at 2:30 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon, and after the game sandwiches and cold drinks will be served. There will also be a prize awarded for high score—just like a real party, you see.

Mrs. Ralph McGill is chairman for the bridge parties, and Flora Wright is junior chairman. Mrs. Albert Thornton, president of the local unit of the British War Relief Society, will act as hostess, and she will be assisted by Mrs. Roger Williams, Mrs. Fred Brooks, and Mrs. Leon Frohman, who will serve as prize chairman. Tickets may be obtained and tables reserved by calling Mrs. Ralph McGill at Vernon 1677, or by phoning relief headquarters.

Of course there has never been a let-up in the knitting of socks, sweaters and other garments at headquarters for the comfort of the besieged British. And for the benefit of the knitters at the bridge parties, the knitting instructors will be on hand to help them over the "rough places" and the "dropped stitches." There are also several machines at headquarters on which Atlanta women daily learn to knit socks. With the place taking on something of a social aspect since the inauguration of the bridge series, it is bound to become increasingly popular and will doubtless soon be the favorite gathering place for Atlanta society.

• • • IF YOU HAVE seen that lovely picture, "Virginia," the current movie hit at the Paramount, you will recall the colorful scenes at the Hunt Club and the thrilling jumping pictures. These scenes were made in the beautiful section around Warrenton, Va., and the Warrenton Hunt Club, with members of the club taking part, is pictured.

This part of the movie is of particular interest to Atlantans, for that popular matron, Mrs. Winship Nunnally, is among the smart riding group. The Nunnallys, you know, own a 200-year-old estate near Charlottesville, and are among prominent figures in hunt club activities. Isabel Nunnally is an expert rider and an excellent jumper.

"Virginia" is photographed in technicolor, and some of the most effective scenes are those made of the Hunt Club, with the riders wearing their colorful pink coats.

• • • AMONG interesting late winter visitors will be Mrs. Myron E. LaVake, of Princeton, N. J., who arrives tomorrow to visit her daughter, Mrs. Charles Jagels, on Howell Mill road. Mrs. LaVake will be accompanied by her close friend, Mrs. A. Leslie Price, of Glenridge, N. J., and the two matrons will remain here for several weeks.

Soon after their arrival here, Mr. and Mrs. Jagels will make a brief trip to New York, and Mrs. LaVake will chaperon her young granddaughters, Nancy and Joan Jagels. Upon their return from New York, Mr. and Mrs. Jagels will plan a number of informal parties for their mother and for Mrs. Price. Mr. and Mrs. Jagels recently took possession of the former Hoke Smith home on Howell Mill road, you know.

• • • MEMBERS of the younger set are regretting the recent departure of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Healey and their young daughter, Joan, who have established residence in Raleigh, N. C. Mrs. Healey, you know, is the former Betty Watson Scott, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Trammell Scott, and for the past several years she and her husband and daughter have made their home here. Betty's parents have just returned from a visit to Raleigh and report that Betty and Jack are making many friends there and are enjoying their new home.

• • • WITH THE swift approach of March, Atlantans are concluding their winter vacations in Florida, and resuming their activities here. Returning Tuesday evening from Palm Beach were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Indell, who spent several days at the fashionable Biltmore there.

Sally was not surprised to learn that Mrs. Indell was completely captivated by the interesting shops on quaint Worth street, and that several trinkets purchased there were included in her baggage en route homeward.

The popular Atlantans spent last Saturday in Miami, where the races at Hialeah Park proved a highlight of their trip.

MR. AND MRS. W. EDWIN MARSHALL JR.

Miss Helen Woodward Weds Wirt Edwin Marshall Jr.

The marriage of Miss Helen Woodward and Wirt Edwin Marshall Jr., took place yesterday morning at 10:45 o'clock in the pastor's study of Druid Hills Baptist church. The ceremony was impressively performed by Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of the church.

breakfast at the Georgian Terrace after the ceremony. A three-tiered wedding cake centered the exquisitely appointed table. The cake was encircled at the base with asparagus fern and valley lilies. Hand-painted cards of miniature brides and grooms marked the guests' places. Only members of the two families attended the breakfast.

Mrs. Woodward, mother of the bride, wore a black and white silk gown, accented with white organdy collar and cuffs. Her black straw hat was trimmed in white, and white camellias adorned her shoulder.

Tech Seeks 1st Victory Over Lampe-Coached Five Here Tonight

BY JACK TROY

Coached 'Old Siwash' C. W. P. Reynolds walked into the office of the president of Knox College, and the Prexy said, "What can I do for you, sir?"

"Nothing," replied Pete Reynolds, "but I can do something for you. I can win a football game for you."

So a deal was made. Pete Reynolds became coach of "Old Siwash," Knox College, Illinois. Knox hadn't won a game in three years. You may recall the national publicity the school was given.

And then Pete Reynolds ruined it all. He took charge of the team and broke the long losing streak which was making left-handed history for the Illinois school.

Pete Reynolds, representing a large distributing concern, came through Atlanta the other day on business. He has been out of the coaching game for some time now but retains a keen interest in football.

It was through Curly Fulton that I met Reynolds, who, strangely enough, coached Harry Robertson, former Petrel coach, when Robertson was an All-America center at Syracuse. Fulton, of course, played under Robertson at Oglethorpe.

"Greatest defensive center I ever saw was Harry Robertson. He was responsible for Syracuse beating Nebraska back in 1918 when I was coaching. Chick Meehan, who later coached Syracuse and Manhattan, was on the team," Reynolds declared.

For 21 years Pete Reynolds coached football—at Syracuse and Bucknell and Knox—as a hobby. Actually coaching was a pleasurable sideline with him. He had his own business and ran it.

Reynolds was afraid to launch into an old-fashioned football session while here because, as he put it, "I wouldn't get any work done. I'm coming back one of these days when business isn't so rushing and have a long chat with Curly Fulton. He's a fine boy."

Some Fun If you feel the need of relaxation and would like to get down to the good earth—spend a night at the Golden Gloves.

The classy amateurs will quicken your pulse and send you home feeling as if you could lick that chesty next-door neighbor with one hand tied behind you. There's definitely something exhilarating about the Golden Gloves.

Dr. Douglas McClay, the Ph. D. from Harvard who teaches math at Georgia Tech, found his first public ring battle a bit uplifting. He was up and down like an elevator. But he was truly game. Dr. McClay's student opponent from Piedmont College happened to be a younger and stronger man. And he could punch.

So, while it was hardly a Harvard classic, this fight between Dr. McClay, Ph. D., and Clifford Allgood, T. K. O., was one of the best of a large number of action-filled events. Incidentally, it was probably the first and last time in history for Piedmont College to defeat Harvard and Georgia Tech in one fell swoop.

There is a stirring quality of genuineness about the Golden Gloves. Here's an example:

George Lockwood, a popular youngster from the Pensacola (Fla.) Y. M. C. A., fighting in the open featherweight class, didn't feel right wearing shoes. So between rounds in his fight with Warren Edwards, of Fort Benning, Lockwood removed his shoes and socks and fought in his bare feet. He won.

No, sir, there are no sham battles in the Golden Gloves. The youngsters have a lot of pride in the

McDermott Sinks 9 of 11 Long Ones

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 19.—Flashing his usual brilliant attack and clowning at will, the original New York Celtics blasted Memphis State College, 48 to 41, here Tuesday night. It was the champions' 53d straight victory.

The Staters were off to an early lead, but soon surrendered their advantage as Celtic points streamed through the hoops. Half-time found the professionals in front, 26 to 15. They coasted in to win as they pleased.

Bobby McDermott, Celtics' great star, scored 18 points as he gave a magnificent performance. He sank nine long field goals in 11 attempts.

3 Georgia Aces Meet Jackets For Last Time

Engineers Given Good Chance To Win Before Record Crowd.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
Georgia Tech will seek its first basketball victory over an Elmer Lampe-coached Georgia quintet tonight at 8 o'clock at the Tech gymnasium.

Five straight losses since the fall coach has been at the helm of the Bulldog court machine has been a bitter dose to take, but the Yellow Jackets believe tonight is the time to break the jinx.

It will be the second meeting of the season between the two schools. Georgia won the first battle in Athens, 31 to 26, but Tech was playing without the services of Buck Stevens, stellar sophomore guard. It also is the semi-final game of the season for the two outfits. Georgia will close its pretournament schedule against Auburn while Tech finishes with Notre Dame in South Bend Saturday night.

LAST IN SERIES.

While Tech is trying to break the Lampe jinx, three Georgia stars will make an equally desperate effort to close their career without ever having tasted defeat at the hands of the Jackets. Captain Dan Kirkland, Joe Killian and Roy Chatham have played in every one of those five straight games Georgia has won.

On the face of past records, Georgia appears to be the slight favorite. But, with the advantage of playing on their home court, the Jackets are set for a battle and a Tech victory could hardly be called an upset.

The Bulldogs, in 20 games, have averaged a little less than 44 points a game while limiting opponents to 41. The situation is reversed with the Techs who have averaged 41 points while opponents have tallied 44 in 16 games this fall.

Tech's conference record is won three—lost eight while Georgia has won six and lost seven within the league. Against all opponents the Jackets have captured seven and lost nine while the Bulldogs have won 11 and lost 9.

MUTUAL FOES SCARE.

Mutual opponents have been scarce, but both teams have played South Carolina, Clemson, Ole Miss, Alabama, Vanderbilt and Auburn, so an idea on how evenly matched they are may be gained.

The whipped South Carolina three times while Georgia split even in two games with the Gamecocks; Georgia lost to Auburn while Tech split even; Tech split with Clemson while Georgia won two from the Tigers; Georgia won one from Vanderbilt while Tech split; both defeated Ole Miss and both were beaten by Alabama.

A record crowd for the season is expected for the battle.

Poscher To Play Against Jackets.

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 19.—Georgia finished work today for tomorrow night's engagement with Georgia Tech in Atlanta and Saturday's clash here with Auburn, two important Southeastern conference tilts, which wind up the Bulldogs' season. They were highly elated over a late afternoon's announcement that George Poschner, regular sophomore forward, would be able to see at least some service against both foes.

Coach Elmer Lampe was told this afternoon that Poschner could be used at short intervals provided his nose, broken when struck by a spectator after the Auburn game in Auburn two weeks ago, is given some protection.

An eye, ear and nose expert agreed to okay his appearance with the specially prepared nose-guard.

LEADING SCORER—Ed Copeland, with 48 points, was top scorer of the state basketball tournament which ended Monday night. Copeland was chosen on the all-tournament team. The veteran forward of the Police Crackers, who formerly starred at Oglethorpe, will be in the Cracker lineup against the Celtics Sunday afternoon at Warren Sports Arena.

Celtics To Draw 7,000 Here in Two Contests

A basketball team has to be better than good to draw a quarter of a million customers every year, as do the Original Celtics.

Atlanta has always been one of the Celtics' favorite spots and for a reason. Fans here have never failed to turn out when the hardwood magicians came to town.

Earlier this season 4,000 people saw the Celtics beat the Crackers at the city auditorium on a concrete floor. Next Sunday afternoon a capacity turnout of 3,000 is expected to watch the champs play a rejuvenated and strengthened Cracker team which has just breezed through the state tournament.

The Crackers will be in much better condition than for their first encounter with the team one thing, Virlyn Moore is back in the lineup and the former Georgia Bulldog has always been a thorn in the side of the Celtics. And another advantage the Crackers will have is their home court. They do more running than the Celtics and undoubtedly were more handicapped than McDermott, Hickey, Banks and company on the concrete at the auditorium.

Fans will be treated to a big afternoon of entertainment. The Sears-Roebuck and Sewell Service girls will play for the state title in a 2:30 p. m. game. Opening the show will be a clash between the Young Men's Syrian Association and Techwood Merchantsmen at 1:30 p. m.

The Celtics will stage their clinic between halves and there will also be a strength show which should please fans.

Tickets may be purchased either

Tech Fencers Set For Fort Benning

As a result of last Saturday's loss to Fort Benning, Coach Morenus has just about ironed out his difficulties in deciding on his starting lineup. From the records to date, it is evident that Captain Craig Davis, Straighton Hard and Arthur Wade are the most consistent winners and are certain to make up the starting team as the Jackets stack up against Fort Benning in a return engagement here in Atlanta on Saturday afternoon.

Coach Morenus has capable reserve men in Graham, Gershon and Sturrock. Saturday's match showed a decisive weakness in the saber, but the coming match will see Bob Haggart back in the No. 1 spot, with Hugh Wright following in No. 2 and Gershon, Graham and Sturrock alternating in the third spot.

The question of the epee team is well settled with its present lineup consisting of Seiferth, Davis and Wade.

Lifting Champion To Appear Sunday

Bill Curry, southern 181-pound heavyweight lifting champion, will give an exhibition of feats of strength at the Sports Arena Sunday afternoon during the Celtic-Atlanta Cracker show. Curry will support over 2,000 pounds on his chest as one of his strong man feats. He will lift the entire Celtic team at once.

Along with Curry will be Charles Dortch, southern 132 and -148-pound champion. Dortch will attempt to set a new record in the two-hands military press. He holds the present record of 210.

New Wildlife Board Slated To Be Formed

Representatives From Various Sections of State Convene Today.

By JOHN MARTIN.
Organization of the board of directors of the Georgia Wildlife Federation will be completed today at a meeting of representatives from various sections of Georgia.

The session will open at 10 o'clock at the assembly room of the Atlanta Fly and Boat Casting Club in the Kimball House. M. E. Harkins, president of the casting club, is acting chairman of the board and will preside at the meeting.

The casting club is sponsoring the federation and two weeks ago launched a movement designed to ultimately turn the administration of the division of wildlife to the hunters, fishermen and farmers of Georgia.

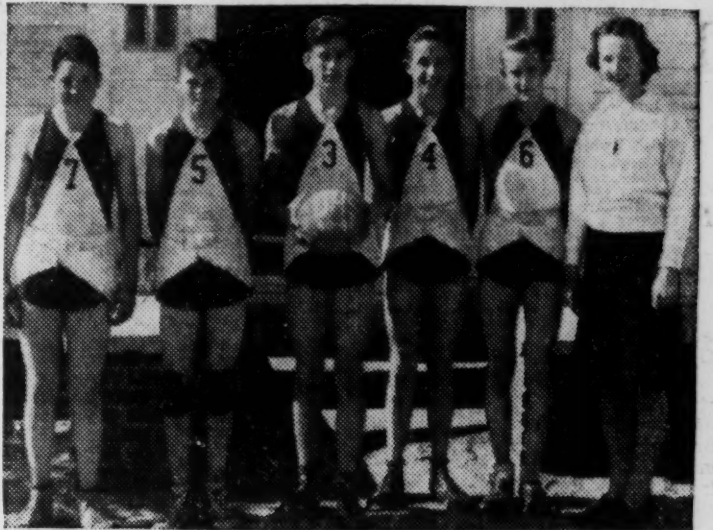

Besides being in favor of legislation proposing many reforms in the present game and fish laws, federation, according to officials, is working to incorporate into a game code a system that would give the hunter, fisherman and farmer an opportunity to voice their expressions through a non-paid commission of conservationists who are wholly outside of the political realm, except in instances when game and fish and natural resources are to be reap the gain.

Today's meeting is not an open affair. However, several key men from some of the more active state clubs and who have asked for permission to attend, will gather with the directors. Plans for a statewide campaign will be made at the session and a working personnel will be set up.

Among the directors attending will be: Phil Stone, of Dalton; E. M. Lipscomb, of Savannah; Jack Tway, Fred Jordan and M. E. Harkins, Atlanta; Sam Monroe, Waycross; Mayson Jaudon, Elberton; Dr. Clabus Lloyd, Gainesville; Hugh Allen, West Point; Clyde King Sr., Atlanta; Dr. Harry Teasley, Hartwell; Lee Evans, Canton, and Major Trammell Scott, Atlanta.

16 POINTS PER GAME

AUBURN, Ala., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Lanky Shag Hawkins, Auburn's sharpshooting center, averaged 16 points in 16 games for the Plainsmen during the 1941 basketball season with a total of 256 points.

GIRL COACHES 'EM—The Deepstep, Ga., basketball team has just won the Washington county "B" basketball tournament and is undefeated during the entire season. Miss Jayce Ward is the coach and the boys say they'll play their hearts out for her. The team, from left to right, includes Veron Deal, Landric Brooks, George Ennis, captain; Altonzo Hutchings, Francis Andrews and Coach Ward.

Jean Bauer Leads Two Players Tie In Nassau Tourney In Metro Tourney

NASSAU, Bahamas, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., scored a 77 today to lead a bunched field through the opening round of a three-day women's medal play golf tournament.

Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., was in second place with a 78 and Mary Agnes Wall, of Menominee, Mich., was third with 79.

Mrs. M. V. Larned and Mrs. M. K. Bailey shared first prize in the Metropolitan Women Golfers' tournament at the John White course yesterday. They had 43 in the best nine competition.

Special prizes went to Mrs. Albert Donnaud and Mrs. O. B. Chatfield.

Four Kayoes Feature Golden Gloves Meet

Bradley, Ramsey, Womack, Gregory Kayo Foes As 42 Fighters Blast Way Into Semi-Finals.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Four knockouts enlivened activities last night as 42 leatherswingers won their way into the semi-finals of the annual Southeastern Golden Gloves championships at the auditorium.

A clean-cut kayo got activities off to a good start in the second fight of the night when Lawrence Bradley battered out Billy Fowler in the second ring. Both boys are from Atlanta. The knockout ended in the last bout of the evening when Arthur Ramsey, of Fort McEllan, blasted out John Stone, of Fort Benning, after flooring his opponent three previous times in the first round of their open heavyweight battle.

However, neither of these bouts was as convincing as the other two knockouts. Woodrow Womack, 1940 Charlotte, N. C., open bantamweight champ, blasted out Lawrence Chavers, of Pensacola, in the second round of their scrap. The first round was a real battle with Chavers getting off the floor to come back and put up a real battle.

The other knockout came in the novice lightweight class when James Gregory, of Perry, Ga., swarmed all over Alvin Dyke Jr., of Atlanta, and blasted him to the canvas in the opening minutes of the first heat.

Henry Heppy, winner of the Syracuse middleweight title last year, continued his march toward another crown by outpointing Joe Juliana, Oglesburg favorite.

Twenty-one bouts, starting at 8 o'clock, are scheduled tonight. The matches are now in the semi-finals and 14 fights will conclude the program Friday night.

West Fulton, Richardson Cop Tournery Tests

Conyers defeated Avondale, 16 to 13, in the fifth district basketball tourney on the Druid Hills court last night. Farmer was high for Conyers with 14 points, Embry was tops for Avondale with eight. Richardson downed Porterdale, 28 to 14, in the second game. Rooks, with 10, was high for Richardson. Moody, with four, was high for Porterdale.

In the last game on the program, West Fulton defeated Campbell, 24 to 19. Hogg, with eight points, was West Fulton's high scorer. Hadden, with eight, paced the losers.

The tourney continues with three games tonight.

In the last game, Stone Mountain defeated Hapeville, 32 to 20. Nash was high point man for the winners, getting 19 markers. Caldwell was best for the losers, hitting the hoops for a total of 10 points.

R. McCutcheon Sure of Plans For '41 Season

Red McCutcheon's got his troubles all straightened out now. Red had signed to umpire in the American Association again (with raise) and already had been given his spring exhibition assignment. Then Red read in The Constitution that he had been traded to the International League for Umpire Jimmy Kelly. He had not been notified, so for a couple of days Red didn't know what league he was in.

But everything's fine now. Red yesterday returned his signed contract to Frank Shaughnessy, head of the International League and originator of the play-off system.

He got the same terms as his Association contract. And he also may spend a month in Florida umpiring in exhibition games. President Shaughnessy inquired if he would be available. And Red said he was.

NAPS Six Thumps Decatur, 38 to 21

The Naps basketball team defeated the Decatur girls, 38 to 21, Wednesday afternoon on the Decatur court. The Naps had a 6-point lead at the half, the score being, Naps 18, Decatur 12.

Kent and Thomas starred for the winners with 20 and 12 points respectively. For the losers, Stephenson and Derkhardt were outstanding, collecting 9 and 7 points respectively.

'Judge Is Boss,' Says Bradley, Of Tribe Team

Former Indian Manager Awarded Slice of the Gate Receipts.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—(AP)—If, as they say, money talks, Oscar Vitt had the last word today in his row with the Cleveland ball club—by proxy.

The last word, exactly $2,500 worth, was delivered in behalf of O. C. by Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, who ruled favorably on Vitt's salary claim against the club which dismissed him late last October.

Vitt, now manager of Portland in the Pacific Coast League, was paid $15,000 for the 1940 season, a hectic one marked by a rebellion of players against him, differences with the Indian front office and a stretch drive which saw Detroit nose out Cleveland for the American League pennant. When Cleveland declined his demand for $2,500 bonus, he took his case to Landis.

The commissioner's secretary, Leslie O'Connor, said he received the Vitt ruling from Florida, where the commissioner is vacationing.

A check for $2,500 was received from the Cleveland club a few days ago and forwarded to Vitt, O'Connor said. At Cleveland, President Alva Bradley, of the Indians, said: "Landis said we owed the Vitt, and we paid it."

His whose job was to get Cleveland manager went to Roger Peckinpaugh, had a contract calling for a $2,500 bonus for every 100,000 customers above the 600,000 mark. Bradley said they agreed in mid-season that if the figure were between 600,000 and 700,000, Vitt would receive the $2,500 anyhow. Since attendance was above 700,000, the club paid Vitt one $2,500 bonus, but balked at giving him another one of $2,500.

"I wanted to keep him happy," said Bradley. "I had no intention of giving him a bonus for 600,000 and another for 700,000."

Russell Scores 40 For Fitzhugh Lee

Adairville defeated McEachern, 23 to 14, in the class C division of the seventh district basketball tournament at the Fitzhugh Lee court last night. In the second game Hiram defeated Powder Springs, 36 to 28. Robert L. Osborn defeated Taylorsville, 34 to 29.

In class B, Acworth defeated Tallapoosa, 25 to 19. Gilliam was high for Tallapoosa, while Mabury was high for the winners with 11 points. Dallas won over Smyrna, 31 to 22. Parin and Mabury were high for the winners with eight points apiece. For the losers Farkner was high with eight.

Fitzhugh Lee, using mostly reserves all the way, completely routed Buchanan, 73 to 27. Russell was high for the winners, hitting the hoops for a total of 40 points. He played only two quarters in accomplishing the feat. Groover was next with 17 markers. For the losers, Biggers was high with 13.

City Basketball

SHOE SHOPS TITLE.

General Shoe captured the second-half championship of the City League, whipping Dixie's big quintet, 56 to 36, last night in Fulton High court. Jim Kelly and Floyd Robinson, two Lithonia stars, aided the Shoemen to this title-clinching victory. Dixie won the first-half title.

In the other games, Sears & Roebuck's fine quintet smothered Central Cafe, 18 to 11. Georgia Power downed Four Square, 52 to 30, in an extra period thriller. Billy Cartwright set a new league single-game scoring record when he sifted through Central Cafe's defense for 35 points to star for Sears & Roebuck. Jim Humber tallied 20 for Sears. CENT. Dudley Lauds Roy Mundorff Picks Kentucky To Capture SEC Cage Tourney

'Wildcats Have More Material Than Any Team I've Seen,' Admits Tech Cage Coach.

By AL SHARP. "I believe if the greens were made out of cobblestones, those putts would still go down," Ed Dudley said.

"Those fellows on the winter circuit have simply gone wild."

Ed bore other tidings of the golf brigade as he stopped here yesterday en route to the Augusta National Golf Club where he is pro during the winter season.

Dudley, the ED DUDLEY, big, genial guy with one of the prettiest swings in golf, was most impressed with Henry Picard's 65 during his victory at New Orleans, last stop on the circuit before the pros invade Thomasville this weekend.

"I thought before the tournament that a 283 or 284 would win. Then Picard turned up with a 276, including that 65. It was a great round."

Picard's 65 wasn't the lowest of the golfers' many brilliant rounds, because Ben Hogan and Lawson Little had 62's. However, the pros were not playing winter rules the day Picard shot the 65, Dudley pointed out.

"It was so muddy the days the 62's were scored," Ed said, "that the players were allowed to place the ball in the fairways and clean them on the greens. They had to play winter rules, because drives were burying in the fairways."

Ed won't get to Thomasville, because he has a lot to do at Augusta getting ready for the annual Masters' tourney, which closes the winter circuit April 3-6.

organizations they represent. The Army boys, for instance, are good to the last drop. They fight fiercely to uphold the prestige of the service. So do the "Y" boys, etc. Piedmont College swept the boards on opening night, winning all four bouts.

The rough edges were removed with the opening fights, which required two rings. And from now until the finals there will be plenty of soul-stirring action at the city auditorium.

Heard Opinions Whitney Martin, Associated Press columnist, writes from New York in regard to what was considered in some quarters as a surprising coaching change at Notre Dame—

"We heard opinions expressed as far back as the last Sugar Bowl game at New Orleans that Frank Leahy would be the next Irish coach, and there were rumors he was being scouted in that game by the Irish much as a rookie ball player would be given the once-over by a major league club.

"A year ago last fall we attended the Notre Dame-U. S. C. game at South Bend and heard vague rumblings of dissatisfaction with the state of football there. Nothing this could be traced down, just growls here and there to the effect that Layden wasn't getting the most out of his material; that he had sophomores sitting on the bench who could be winning games for him.

"The rumblings never reached a roar. In fact, on the surface everything was serene. But we heard them again at New Orleans. One man, closely associated with the Notre Dame situation, put it this way:

"They aren't playing Notre Dame football. The players don't give that all-out effort, the abandon in their play, that they had under Rockne. Do you know the coach who has instilled that spirit into his men? None other than Frank Leahy. He's got the Rockne touch."

Leahy is a great football psychologist. No doubt about it. He stated publicly that his Boston College players would outlast Tennessee—and they did. He seemed able to inspire the Eagles at will.

DEVIL'S WORK

By CAROLYN WELLS

Jean Is Warned To Watch Her Step By Campbell Who Is Worried Himself

SYNOPSIS.

Jean Selden is in love with Brandon Sayre, an explorer, but is dazzled by Vivian Forrest's ardent love-making and wealth and marries him. Vivian is impatient, makes no secret of his various affairs and after two years Jean detects him but she must consider her baby Florimel. Sayre is a member of a house party at palatial Forrest Fell on Long Island and Jean knows her love for Brandon is not dead. Other guests are Peter Haskell, Anne Fraser and Suzy Kirk and all, including Vivian's half brother, Austin, are practicing for a fencing tournament to be held there. Then Vivian brings as a guest Esmeralda Fane, a pretty movie actress, insulting the Fane's choice nursery rooms be turned over to her. Vivian has a daily fifteen-minute fencing period with Jean who also is an expert. Jean leaves at once one night after they fence. His guests notice that he is not; he drops dead. Dr. Gregg, the family physician, says morphine caused death, though he notes a small foil wound on the neck. All the guests, then Jean and Austin are questioned by Medical Examiner Peterson, District Attorney Mitchell and Police Inspector Eastman who do not know then that Vivian had told Jean that Esmeralda was to be a permanent member of the household. After Vivian's funeral, Robert W. Campbell, a lawyer, calls the family and guests to Vivian's study. He reads a letter Vivian had left with him, saying he hid his last will that room. Esmeralda says she holds a promissory note, signed by Vivian, for one million dollars. Now on with the story:

INSTALLMENT XX.

"Moreover, I am anxious about that promissory note that Miss Fane alleges she has. If it is genuine, it will have to be paid. But I do not mean to distress you by these fears. In a day or two, they may be cleared up, and we may have clear sailing. Please be careful in every way. Your speech, your behavior, your hopes and fears must not be unconsidered. Those guests of yours may be your friends, but not all friends are faithful, or even reliable."

"You are warning me?" she asked, with a little smile.

But he responded gravely, "A man's foes may be they of his own household."

And then, Campbell, about to leave, suggested that they go to the study to find Austin.

As they had anticipated, there were five people diligently looking for the hidden will. It was very quiet in the room, no one was speaking to any one else. Only the men looked up as they entered.

Sayre, who was trying the secret drawers of a curio cabinet, came at once to Jean's side.

"I am working in your interests," he said, smiling at her. "I somehow think Vivian put the thing in some secret drawer or concealed pigeonhole. We must find it for you."

"It will be found," Jean said. "Just wait till I take a hand at it."

"It must be found," Austin declared as he joined them. "Why, Jean, until we get it, we don't know where we are."

"Perhaps when we get it, we may know even less. Oh, drop it, Suzy! That's my own particular drawer!"

Jean hurried over to the high-boy where Suzy was fishing in the lowest drawer.

The others followed, and Campbell saw at once that the drawer was filled with various kinds of fancy work, though the materials were tidily separated, the whole was more or less in disorder from Suzy's rummaging.

"Let me show you these things," Jean begged. "Look at every one and then you won't have to be eternally turning them upside down. Here are all the materials for knitting—wools, needles, patterns—all that. Then here is my lace work outfit—all the bobbins and threads and book of instructions. I'll take these things out and put them back, and then we'll consider this drawer searched."

"Yes," Austin said, "do that, Jean."

"Very well," Jean went on. "I'll lay them all out; here's my bead work and my petit point. These strings of beads and skins of colored silks belong to them. And here is my workbasket, with thimbles, scissors, spoons and needle case. Now they're all out, and I'll put them back myself. You girls know how horrid it is to find your silks tangled and your needles lost when you want to work."

"We're not to bother with the books," Mr. Campbell said so. "This from Suzy."

"It was in the letter," Austin said, "but it may have been put in to tease us. I shall most certainly go through the books."

"Then it's an endless job!" and Jean sat down on a couch in despair.

"I'm going now," Campbell said. "I will look up the law on all these matters. I will see you again soon."

"You wanted to speak to Austin?"

"Not particularly. You see, not knowing positively who the heir is, I am at a loss to know how to act. But it will all come out right; don't look so despondent."

"I am not despondent, so much as bewildered."

"Yes, that is the word. I think we all feel that. But I shall know more by tomorrow, and we can begin to see our way more clearly."

He went away, and Jean looked around at the two girls and Austin and Peter, all four intent on their prying and peering into every nook and cranny of the various cabinets and commodore that made the place beautiful.

Sayre gave up his search at once, and came to sit beside her on the couch in the alcove where Suzy had been with Peter the night of the tragedy.

"I'm glad to see you resting," he said. "There's no need for you to join the active search. There are quite enough to take care of that. Jean, I want to talk to you alone, but perhaps this is just as convenient and a bit safer."

"What do you mean, by safer?" "Have you no idea?"

The sudden look of fear that came over the calm face, the terror in the deep eyes, answered his question.

"Who has been talking to you?" he went on.

"Mr. Campbell tried to scare me."

"Don't take that attitude. Campbell is a sound man. If he gave you a hint, you would do well to listen to it. What did he say?"

"In a word, he said to watch my step. He said to be careful of my talk and my actions. And he said to keep my hopes and fears to myself."

"How I wish I could pick you up and carry you off! Yes, darling, you must watch your step. I think it kinder to tell you that Inspector Eastman is going to talk to you tomorrow."

"Tomorrow! Will they come on Sunday?"

"Yes; but if you make up your mind to disappoint them, I think you can do it."

"I can do anything I make up my mind to do."

"I know it. But it will be difficult. Eastman is a shrewd man, but he is also a just one. Undoubtedly he will try to trip you up. And you are so frank and straightforward that you will say more than is wise. Yet I can't make you deceitful or tricky."

"No, you can't be artful; it isn't in you. But just remember this: Don't volunteer information of any sort. Answer questions, but make no statements otherwise."

Jean sat in the day nursery with little Florimel in her arms. She could think better, she often told herself, with the child near her, and today she had much to think of. She was expecting to be called at any minute to meet the inspector in a small reception room.

When the summons came, she gave the baby to Rhoda with a sigh. As she passed through the hall downstairs, she found Austin.

"I just want to say," he spoke hesitantly, "that I'd like to go with you—if you want me to."

"What for?" "Only that I might be of help," he returned slowly, "if you'd rather not have me, just say so. But Eastman is—well—"

"Mending," she suggested. "Yes, he is. And you sometimes lose your poise when he glowers at you."

"I do, Austin. I'm ashamed of myself for such weakness, but he is so like a beast, ready to pounce, that I can't run!"

"He isn't, you know, but I think I'll go with you."

"As they entered the room together, Eastman rose and said, 'Good morning' with a suavity that made Jean think he was on his Sunday behavior."

"I must ask you some questions, Mrs. Forrest," the inspector went on, after they were seated. "You do not object to your brother-in-law's presence?"

"Oh, no; we now represent the Forrest family. I have no secrets from him."

"First, let me express my amazement at the very strange conditions attendant on the will of the late Vivian Forrest. I assume you have not yet discovered its hiding place."

"No, Mr. Eastman, we have not. You will doubtless hear of it when we do."

"Yes, yes, surely." Both the inspector and Austin Forrest wondered why Jean's speech was so curt and her manner so distant.

But Jean's nature was such that the more she wanted kindness and sympathy, the more she hid that desire, lest she be thought of as one who begs for leniency.

"I wish you would tell me," Eastman went on, "whether the young lady, Miss Fane, is visiting here at your request."

"She is staying here at present," Jean told him, "because, as I understand it, the police are not willing she should leave."

"Yes, but I mean did she come here at your invitation?"

"My husband invited her, for the tournament season. It was our custom to invite any friends either of us wanted."

"And Mr. Forrest wanted Miss Fane?"

"Yes, she is a popular actress and a charming guest."

"And you wanted Mr. Brandon Sayre, and you invited him?"

"Yes, he is a famous explorer, and he also is a charming guest. I like people with gentle manners."

Apart from the words, the emphasis and expression made Eastman feel very uncomfortable and his face reddened. He was not of a gentle nature, and people usually found it out if they teased him.

"Yes, Mr. Sayre has gentle manners. I understand you were engaged to him before you met Mr. Forrest."

Jean suddenly remembered her resolve not to speak except in an-

The Gentleman--

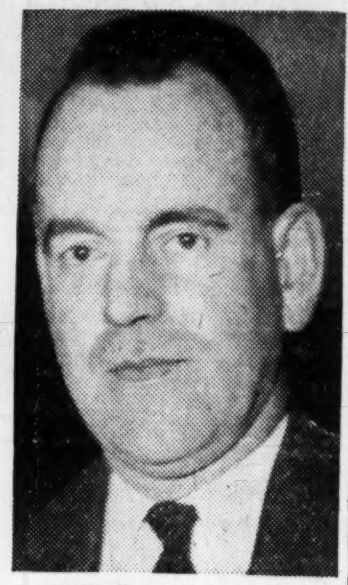

From Lowndes ... From Berrien ... From Bibb ...

Representative J. G. Cowart, of Lowndes.

Representative P. L. Pittman, of Berrien.

Representative A. H. S. Weaver, of Bibb.

J. G. Cowart, Lowndes representative, has had more practice farming than gathering the money from his crops but he's always farmed, he says, and only left his plow for this first term in the house. He is interested in agriculture for the common people of the county, is delighted to see that the school teachers will be paid and cared for and is a member of the General Agriculture Committee No. 2. A tobacco grower, he is the first farmer to represent Lowndes in the past 16 years. He lives as far from town as possible—10 miles from Valdosta. The 51-year-old legislator is married, has three daughters, and four grandchildren.

A representative for a decade, Perry L. Pittman now knows just what makes the wheels behind the law-making body of Georgia turn. He's a teacher and a farmer and for 18 years has taught in the rural section. A World War veteran who is most interested in education and agriculture, he is staunchly opposed to the grandfather clause. He believes in economy and hopes to curtail expenditures whereby all past obligations may be paid in full and old people may receive their benefits through pensions. He thinks pensions should be equally divided among the blind, cripple, and the dependent. The son is 42, married, the father of four daughters and one son.

"Politics is a great old game," says A. H. S. Weaver, a first-term representative from Bibb county. He's a lawyer, past president of the Macon Kiwanis Club, and has books as his hobby. He received both his A. B. and LL.B. degrees from Mercer University and is now practicing law in the Macon firm of Harris, Harris, Russell and Weaver. He's a man who plays politics because he has fun at the game and yet he is not a man who just comes to the house. He has definite objectives, thinks a term here combines with his law practice to benefit both him and the people he serves. He comes from a long line of law practitioners, having his grandfather on both his mother's and father's side engaged in the practice of law.

Women Jurors Bill Is Passed By the Senate

Three Amendments Attached to Measure Sent to House.

Weighted down with three amendments, a controversial bill permitting Georgia women to serve on grand and traverse juries finally passed the state senate yesterday with a roll call vote of 29-18.

The measure, as it goes to the house, authorizes jury commissions to include the names of women taxpayers in the jury wheels of Georgia counties, provided:

1. Two successive grand juries indorse the jury service of women.
2. Any woman called for jury service can refuse by filing an objection with the clerk of the superior court.

Must Apply.

3. Any woman wishing her name to be included in the jury list must first make written application to the jury commissioners. If she is a qualified taxpayer, her name will be included upon receipt of the application.

This last amendment was tacked on yesterday morning by Senator Drake, of Colquitt, after brief debate. The first two amendments were added last Monday following a public hearing attended by more than 50 women representing various political organizations.

Senator Hugh Couch, of Fulton, voted for the bill. Senator Pat Campbell, who represents DeKalb, Newton, and Rockdale counties, opposed the measure.

Authorized by Judge.

It was introduced by Senator James B. Park, of Greensboro, who was judge of the Ocmulgee superior court for 28 successive years.

Senator Helen Coxon, of Ludowici, the only woman member of the upper chamber, said she was voting against the bill because she believed "that if women are going to serve on juries, they should serve on an equal basis with men." She opposed the amendments.

Opposing the bill were Senators Barger, Bradley, Campbell, Coxon, Dobbs, Edenfield, Gross, Guyton, Harrison, Holt, Kiker, Kirkland, Lewallen, McGehee, Milhollin, Mosley, Striplin and Whaley. Not present were Burnside, Smith of the 24th, Smith of the 35th, and Mason.

Massachusetts House

Rejects Race Measure

BOSTON, Feb. 19. — (AP) — A measure aimed at "preventing discrimination" in granting leases for living quarters because of race, color or creed was rejected by the Massachusetts house today on voice vote and without debate. The bill had been supported by Negro organizations.

Baptist Preachers Rap Alcoholic Advertising

ROME, Ga., Feb. 19.—Pastors of the Floyd County Baptist Association today called on readers of magazines and newspapers to protest to publishers against the advertising of alcoholic beverages, declaring in resolutions that "the purchase of such paper or magazine gives consent to the advertising of such intoxicating beverages."

Hospitalization Extension Plan Sped in House

Bill Permits Treatment in Any Approved Georgia Hospital.

By LUKE GREENE.

Extension of the benefits of group hospitalization will be sought in the house of representatives this morning when the legislative body takes up a senate-approved measure sponsored by Senator Grady Coker, of Canton.

Dr. Coker's bill provides that any person who takes out group hospitalization be allowed to go to any properly-approved hospital in the state. The plan is now limited to Atlanta hospitals.

Representative J. W. Culpepper, house floor leader, made this bill a special order of business for today by letting the bill be read yesterday and then immediately calling for adjournment. After adjournment Culpepper said he had no particular interest in the bill but wanted to get it out of the way.

Ordinarily the measure would not have been on today's calendar, since the house considers house bills only on special days. Indications were that it would encounter little trouble in passing the lower chamber.

Off-Year Elections.

By a vote of 119 to 5, the house yesterday moved to abolish the off-year general election. The senate already had approved the measure. It will not affect the election this year, however, when several constitutional amendments will come before the people.

Proponents of the bill contended the special election, which was utilized principally for constitutional amendments, cost the counties from $20,000 to $40,000 during those years in which it was held.

Representative L. A. Whipple, of Bleckley, declared "this is one of those damnable Rivers bills" and added that "there is one more coming—the damnable liquor bill." Whipple is chairman of the house temperance committee.

Representative Culpepper argued the off-year general election was of little value since the people steadfastly refused to go to the polls.

Opposing the measure, Representative Frank Gross, of Stephens, declared that since its repeal did not become effective until 1943, he thought the next general assembly should be allowed to deal with the matter.

The house also passed senateapproved bills abolishing the state veterinarian and providing for his appointment by the state commissioner of agriculture.

After debating for approximately an hour, the house passed a bill clarifying the present law on consolidation of school districts.

The lengthy debate resulted when several legislators declared the bill would radically change the present method of consolidation, making it possible for a district with a high tax rate to "swallow up" a smaller district with a lower tax rate.

After dragging out copies of the code, proponents of the measure finally convinced the doubting legislators that the bill only corrected several grammatical errors and clarified the law and that there was no need to fear any other motives.
